Pink Velvet Puppies.

The Mikado Laughs.

Cruisers and Airplanes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in accordance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

FASHIONABLE ladies in Paris have for their latest toy pink velvet puppies, very fat, with bright red tongues sticking out of their mouths.

Rich American girls acquire similar toys in the way of foreign husbands. Eventually the foreign husband, like the pink velvet puppy, goes into the ash can.

THE Japanese emperor, dead and embalmed, will lie in state for 50 days.

His son, Hirohito, 25 years old, takes the mikado's throne, not dressed in the old strange clothes, but in the fighting uniform of western soldiers.

If that young man is ambitious, it would interest him to look across the Pacific to the harbor of Los Angeles, the southwestern door to California and the United States.

There he would see an array of battleships costing 50 millions apiece and more, the Colorado, Maryland, West Virginia, Tennessee, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Nevada, Arizona.

Very impressive and dramatic are those battleships and the young mikado would laugh heartily if he could see them.

He knows, what our foolish government does not know, that a battleship today is no more valuable in war than the fierce masks that the mikado's warriors once put over their faces to frighten enemies.

Every one of these battleships needs protection from airplanes, as a hen needs protection from hawks.

The Mikado has the airplanes, we haven't.

He could send across the Pacific, on his plane carrying ships enough flying machines and bombs to sink every one of those foolish battleships in a forenoon.

And if there were talk of war tomorrow, next day would find our brilliant mahogany desk warriors camouflaging the fighting ships, looking for a safe place to hide them.

In the big war Britain and Germany kept their battleships hidden away in harbors, from start to finish, except for one little fight when some ships went out, shot at each other turned tail and went home as fast as they could. Had the airplane been perfected then, they would never have got home.

Our government knows all that. But facts mean less at Washington than the lobbying of ship builders and manufacturers of armor plate.

What are Your Children Reading?

There is no more important problem for the parents of growing children than the supervision of their reading.

But books for children are difficult to choose. Child standards must be remembered and it is not easy for a grown person to get a child's point of view.

The little ones should be given only books by the great child-loving and child-understanding authors which hold true to the standards which govern good literature and good art.

There are many books that come under the above classification. The best of them are listed in "One Thousand Useful Books" the booklet which this Bureau has for distribution. Included are books for children under eight, books for boys and girls from eight to twelve, and books for other children.

Enclose four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

I enclose herewith four cents in stamps for a copy of the booklet ONE THOUSAND USEFUL BOOKS.

CONGRESS BACK ON JOB FOR SHORT SESSION

LEADERS WORRIED

Fight Against Illinois Man May Begin Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—With the political future of Senator-designate Frank L. Smith (R) of Illinois, arousing more interest than its own legislative program, congress reconvened today for the remaining eight working weeks of its life.

The ambition of Smith to take a seat in the senate as the appointed successor of the late Senator William B. McKinley threatened the returning congress with the possibility of a special session after March 4 and gave administration leaders their greatest worry. As Smith will face a thoroughly hostile senate, ready and even eager to return him to private life, administration leaders said their efforts would be directed toward forcing an early decision on the Illinois appointee.

Rumors were current here that Smith would come to Washington Wednesday with his credentials from Governor Len Small, of Illinois. If he does, the fight to close the doors of the senate to him will begin the moment he attempts to present his credentials. All pools have indicated a clear majority committed against admitting Smith while numerous senators, including some administration leaders, predicted that Smith's opponents can easily muster a two-thirds vote.

Naval Program Outlined.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. — The administration's naval program was laid before congress today, thus paving the way for the bitter fight that is to be waged over strengthening America's sea power.

The program was brought out in the naval supply bill, carrying $316,469,530 for the next fiscal year, a reduction of $5,500,000 and with no money provided for cruiser construction to bring the United States navy up to the 5-5-3 parity with Great Britain and Japan. It was laid before the house by the administration-controlled appropriations committee. The naval committee is on the other side of the controversy, an will fight for new cruiser construction.

"With respect to new vessels, the committee is ready to proceed in providing the requisite funds whenever the president shall so recommend," said the committee's report.

GAIN OF 5,352 SINCE CENSUS SEVEN YEARS AGO REPORTED

Survey Here Shows 13,206 Males and 13,557 Females.

5,401 PUPILS

Increase in School Enrollment and Water Consumers.

The population of East Liverpool at the opening of 1927, seven years after the last decennial census, is 26,763, compared with 25,693 at the opening of 1926, and 21,411 in 1920, an increase of 25 per cent, according to a survey just completed for The Review-Tribune by The Newspaper Feature Bureau. The survey, with definitely ascertained figures of increase, is not to be classed with estimates derived only from the gain of the 1910-1920 decade.

Characteristics of the East Liverpool population are :

| | 1920 Census | 1927 Survey |
|---|---|---|
| Population ..... | 21,411 | 26,763 |
| Males ..... | 10,565 | 13,206 |
| Females ..... | 10,846 | 13,557 |
| Persons over 21 .. | 12,999 | 16,249 |
| Males ..... | 6,400 | 8,000 |
| Females ..... | 6,599 | 8,249 |
| Dwellings ..... | 4,889 | 5,986 |
| Families ..... | 5,315 | 6,641 |

The survey is based on statistics from local sources giving comparative figures for the close of 1919 and the close of 1926:

Excess of births over deaths of 1,715 since 1920.

No annexation of territory since the census of 1920, although additional territory will be taken in early in February.

Report of Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay of public schools enrollment of 4,397 at the close of 1919; 5,200 at the close of 1925, and 5,401 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,004, or 22.9 per cent.

School age enumeration of 4,500 at the close of 1919; 5,500 at the close of 1925 and 5,800 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,300 or 28.5 per cent.

Report from the Superintendent of the East Liverpool Water Works of 4,500 active domestic water services in the city at the close of 1919; 4,975 at the close of 1925, and 5,200 at the close of 1926, an increase of 700, or 15.5 per cent.

The sharp increase during the past year both in schools enrollment and enumeration and in the number of domestic water services is indicative of the considerable population increase shown in the survey as compared with the figures for the opening of 1926.

EFFORTS TO SOLVE FINANCIAL TROUBLES OF STATE GOVERNMENT WILL FEATURE LEGISLATURE'S MEET

By C. H. HADDOX.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 3.—Efforts to solve the financial troubles of the Buckeye state government will feature the activities of the 87th regular biennial session of the Ohio legislature which convened here today.

Continuation of the deadlock, which marked the legislative session here two years ago, between Governor Vic Donahey and the Republican majority in the senate over the question of senatorial confirmation of the governor's selections for membership on the state utilities commission is scheduled as an added feature.

Besides giving consideration to a multitude of measures dealing with local issues in various parts of the state, the legislators will wrestle with proposed statutory enactments designed to solve vexing taxation problems; to provide for an extensive program of highway improvement, amendment of primary and election laws, and changes in the state's dry laws.

As has been the case for a number of sessions, the new legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. There are 138 Republicans, 35 senators and 103 house members, and 35 Democrats, two of which are in the senate and 33 in the house.

Although the prevailing sentiment among the leaders appears to favor a short, snappy legislative session, prediction was frequently made in the legislative chambers today that it will be an extended affair, and that the solons will not finish their work before April.

Seek Way to Avoid Deficit.

Groundwork for major activities by the legislators will be found in bills which will embody recommendations of the joint legislative committees on taxation and economy, highways, and elections which, since the last regular legislative session, gave extended and comprehensive study to the many problems relating to these phases of state government.

One of the most pressing duties confronting the legislators here is that of finding some way to avoid a deficit in the state's general revenue fund. A number of times during recent months, this fund, in the state treasury, was completely wiped out.

For the purpose of preventing the state from being plunged into involuntary bankruptcy, some legislators want the governor and the legislative leaders to get together on a legislative program providing for revision of taxes, which will provide for increased revenues, and for econ-

The survey, with definitely ascertained figures of increase, is not to be classed with estimates derived only from the gain of the 1910-1920 decade.

Characteristics of the East Liverpool population are :

| | 1920 Census | 1927 Survey |
|---|---|---|
| Population ..... | 21,411 | 26,763 |
| Males ..... | 10,565 | 13,206 |

| Females ..... | 6,599 | 8,249 |
| Dwellings ..... | 4,869 | 5,986 |
| Families ..... | 5,315 | 6,641 |

The survey is based on statistics from local sources giving comparative figures for the close of 1919 and the close of 1926:

Excess of births over deaths of 1,715 since 1920.

No annexation of territory since the census of 1920, although additional territory will be taken in early in February.

Report of Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay of public schools enrollment of 4,397 at the close of 1919; 5,200 at the close of 1925, and 5,401 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,004, or 22.9 per cent.

School age enumeration of 4,500 at the close of 1919; 5,500 at the close of 1925 and 5,800 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,300 or 28.5 per cent.

Report from the Superintendent of the East Liverpool Water Works of 4,500 active domestic water services in the city at the close of 1919; 4,975 at the close of 1925, and 5,200 at the close of 1926, an increase of 700, or 15.5 per cent.

The sharp increase during the past year both in schools enrollment and enumeration and in the number of domestic water services is indicative of the considerable population increase shown in the survey as compared with the figures for the opening of 1926.

EFFORTS TO SOLVE FINANCIAL TROUBLES OF STATE GOVERNMENT WILL FEATURE LEGISLATURE'S MEET

By C. H. HADDOX.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 3.—Efforts to solve the financial troubles of the Buckeye state government will feature the activities of the 87th regular biennial session of the Ohio legislature which convened here today.

Continuation of the deadlock, which marked the legislative session here two years ago, between Governor Vic Donahey and the Republican majority in the senate over the question of senatorial confirmation of the governor's selections for membership on the state utilities commission is scheduled as an added feature.

Besides giving consideration to a multitude of measures dealing with local issues in various parts of the state, the legislators will wrestle with proposed statutory enactments designed to solve vexing taxation problems; to provide for an extensive program of highway improvement, amendment of primary and election laws, and changes in the state's dry laws.

As has been the case for a number of sessions, the new legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. There are 138 Republicans, 35 senators and 103 house members, and 35 Democrats, two of which are in the senate and 33 in the house.

Although the prevailing sentiment among the leaders appears to favor a short, snappy legislative session, prediction was frequently made in the legislative chambers today that it will be an extended affair, and that the solons will not finish their work before April.

Seek Way to Avoid Deficit.

Groundwork for major activities by the legislators will be found in bills which will embody recommendations of the joint legislative committees on taxation and economy, highways, and elections which, since the last regular legislative session, gave extended and comprehensive study to the many problems relating to these phases of state government.

One of the most pressing duties confronting the legislators here is that of finding some way to avoid a deficit in the state's general revenue fund. A number of times during recent months, this fund, in the state treasury, was completely wiped out.

For the purpose of preventing the state from being plunged into involuntary bankruptcy, some legislators want the governor and the legislative leaders to get together on a legislative program providing for revision of taxes, which will provide for increased revenues, and for econ-

SYNOPSIS:

Quexter, the narrator of the tale, is an American employed by the American Overseas Bank in Paris. He starts for Geneva on business for his bank, stopping at Dijon between trains. While at lunch at an inn a man accosts him—a fellow American, and asks if he may share his room that night as the inn is crowded. He is a small man, a schoolmaster from the middle west, he says, quite undistinguished looking.

He appears absentminded, as if his thoughts are not on what he is saying, and the attention of both is finally called to some new arrivals—a stout, flashily dressed man and a woman.

The woman is young, refined and attractive. The chauffeur accompanying the pair is Japanese.

I put my hands in bewilderment to my throbbing head.

Quexter expects to leave Dijon at 2 a. m., so pays his bill mentioning to the inn proprietor at the time that the American is sharing his room on account of the crowded conditions, whereupon the host expresses surprise and says there is no crowd. Quexter decides the schoolmaster is imperfectly acquainted with the French language.

The schoolmaster is a fussy roommate insisting on the bedroom door being locked and the lights in the room left burning, which bothers Quexter.

CHAPTER THREE.

I fell presently into an uneasy doze, but soon woke to find that my restless companion had left his bed and was standing upright on the floor, gazing at me intently as though apparently to make sure that I was asleep. As I forbore to move, he concluded that I was, and turning away he bent down towards the window which he shut with a snap. He appeared to examine the fastening and presently turned away with a slight exclamation of dissatisfaction. His next move was toward the door opening into the corridor. He went outside for a moment and returned shortly with the valet. Motioning him to be silent, he led him to the window and asked him in a low voice and in excellent French whether it was possible to lock it. The man, surly from being awakened, replied shortly that it was not and left the room. My companion locked the door after him and returned disconsolately to his bed.

I was now fully awake and inclined to be curious. The behavior of my companion was certainly rather odd. His anxiety to be safely sealed up in a lighted bedroom was sufficiently disconcerting. What was more, he had quite clearly gone out of is way to deceive me. He had asked me to act as interpreter for him, on the ground that he knew no French, but as soon as he thought I was asleep, he had conversed with the valet de chambre with an astonishing fluency and a familiar knowledge of the idiom. This threw a strange light upon his behavior with regard to the double room. He could not possibly have misunderstood the proprietor, which must mean that for some queer reason or other he was pining for human companionship.

Curiously enough, I never suspected him of designs upon either myself or my property. The idea that the little man mighth imself be in any way dangerous never once entered my head. I did, however, find myself wondering, rather vaguely, whether his strange behavior could have anything to do with his unmistakable interest in the fat man and his traveling companion. There seemed, however, to be no possible connection, and I soon gave up trying to solve the puzzle.

I was sufficiently curious to determine that I would keep awake myself till the little man was asleep, for I was now more than doubtful about him. No sooner, however, had I formed this resolution than I found myself getting drowsier and drowsier, until at last I suppose I must have fallen into a heavy slumber.

I awoke, with the sudden uncomfortable sensation of one who knows that he has overslept, to the sound of a furious knocking at the door of the room. I started up in bed to find to my dismay that the sunlight was streaming through the window.

I looked in a daze at my watch. It was just past seven o'clock in the morning.

I then glanced towards the other bed and could scarcely believe my eyes.

The little schoolmaster was no longer there!

Meanwhile, the knocking at my door was resumed. Getting out of bed, I crossed the room and discovered to my further amazement that the door was still locked on the inside. I noticed algo that the window was open, but that the room was abominably close and stuffy; and that I had a splitting headache, the sort that follows too many mixed drinks on the previous evening.

I turned the key and admitted the valet de chambre, scolding him indignantly for his negligence in not awakening me in time for my train.

Monsieur, he protested, had left no instructions to be called. Nor had the other gentleman, he continued, looking towards the second bed.

"Mon dieu!" he cried suddenly. "The other gentleman has gone."

"So it seems," I replied. "But I did not see him go. Nor did I hear anything, though he appears to have packe up everything and taken all his belongings."

"Monsieur was sleeping perhaps too profoundly," said the man. "Monsieur refused to wake up this morning. I have knocked loudly several times."

I put my hands in bewilderment to my throbbing head.

"The gentleman departed, perhaps, by the window," the valet suggested helpfully.

I walked to the window and found that it opened on to a long balcony which could be approached from several other rooms of the hotel.

"He is the friend of Monsieur?" the valet de chambre insinuated.

"Not at all," I said sharply. "Moreover, he shared my room last night as the result of a false statement. He said that all the other rooms of the hotel were taken."

We agreed that it was a mystery, and so it remained. Subsequent inquiries showed that no one had seen or heard the little American leave the hotel. He had disappeared, leaving no trace or clew behind him, together with a small bill for which the proprietor vainly attempted to make me responsible.

I had no choice but to wait in Dijon for the day train from Paris to Geneva, which went through at about three in the afternoon. I spent the interval in recovering slowly from one of the worst headaches I have ever known, and in beating my brains for an explanation of the peculiar behavior of the little schoolmaster, and of his still more peculiar disappearance. The only possible theory, namely, that the man was a crook, was definitely beside the point. He had not taken from the bedroom so much as a toothbrush, though I was traveling with a tidy wad of notes which I had very carelessly taken no precautions to conceal or to put beyond his reach. The coat in the pocket of which they reposed had been dangling in full view of my companion all through the night, within easy reach of his fingers.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

When Grandma's Grandma Was a Little Girl

SHE had to light the candles each evening with a thin wax taper—for they had no lamps in those days.

And her mother swept with a heavy willow broom, washed with a rubbing board, ironed with a flatiron, cooked over a fire in an open fireplace. Electric refrigeration was unheard of, sewing was done by hand.

If grandma's grandma could come back to earth and see how easily and how cheaply mother sweeps, washes, irons, cooks and even preserves food—all with electricity—she could tell us all how fortunate we are to have such a dependable electric service.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

BELATED BUT SINCERE.

The funeral was over. The elderly widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage whistling to himself. A neighbor passed and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said, striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eph," said the supposedly bereaved one, cheerfully. "Dun't know ez I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin'—her," said the astonished neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children and always done mighty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I know that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'. But goldern her, I never did like her!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona, Jan. 1.—For no reason at all I am on my way to California for a brief stay. This train appropriately named The Chief, thunders along from Chicago to Los Angeles over the picteresque old Santa Fe trail in 63 hours. Soon there will be three day trains from New York to the coast.

One cannot help but think of the pioneers who battled their way in ox drawn prairie schooners that their perfumed descendants might enjoy a humanized Pullman service that even provides oblivion for discarded razor blades. Few touches of the old west survive.

Here and there one sees the last of the vanishing Americans. They loiter on station platforms, their hats festooned with gaudy buttons, as final sop to their love for color, complacently smoking rolled cigarettes and selling Navajo blankets to their conquerors.

The miracle of winter no longer confounds them. The automobile has solved the problem of transportation. Cities along the old trail are as sprightly as those on Long Island. Sheep herders, turning in lonely saddles to gaze, dot the plains in wake of their slow moving, grazing charges.

Now and then a figure appears in the doorway of a lean-to in the foothills waving rather pathetically—perhaps an Easterner struggling valiantly to health in the open and cheered by a brief glimpse of a civilization to which he hopes soon to return.

At a few stations wild roving dogs come down from the hills to devour scraps tossed them by thoughtful cooks from the diners. A group of them surrounded my dog like hyenas in a semi-circle. He is a city bred parlor pooch but the hair stood on his back defiantly. I was quite proud.

There is a light heartedness about travelers to California. Every train carries those who have thrown off the yoke of business and look forward to front porch rockers and valetudinarian ease. In the East the adenoid flourishes. Here the Adam's apple.

Chicago strikes me as the place where the west really begins. There, one sees the first touch of cattlemen in wide hats. It is always associated in my mind with Parmalee buses, colored waiters and doleful police whistles. Not even New York has the jangle and robust vitality. There is a charm to its dingy alleys, murky river and noisy clang. The lake front becoming a glorified Venice with peninsulas of ribbonlike roads unwinding along the horizon. Skyscrapers seem as high as those in New York.

In Chicago I spent an hour with James Keeley, once regarded as a thunderer of the news rooms in the days when my journalistic pin feathers were sprouting. I circled his newspaper building twice in those days trying to muster courage to ask him for a job but couldn't make it. I found him a soft voiced gentleman who would not look out of place as a curate in an English country side. The myth grew he was an editorial orge and yet he told me he had never fired a man in his life. "They fire themselves," he said. Keeley was a London street waif and his career is an American classic.

There is a sweep and majestic grandeur to Arizona and its sheer cliffs and deserts that no other state has, and I've seen them all. There are bleak portions of it to be sure that seem like wasteland but generally it is overwhelmingly beautiful. It has untold wealth never tapped and some day soon Arizona will be "discovered." Mark this prediction! I'm the bright boy incidentally who predicted the movies would never be popular.

New Mexico and its adobe houses also stir the imagination. Albuquerque is different. No American city is exactly like it. It blends the old Indian influence with modern Americanism in quaint manner. One sees the up-to-the-minute flapper tripping down to meet trains, and also the gnarled red chieftains squatting on the platform selling pots and vases.

Soon the trek across the Mojave desert and down grade into the land of roses with a back-ground of snow capped Sierras cowled in mystery. That, mesdames et messieurs, is California!

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

The Postal Savings System has been in operation over 15 years and, as has been said by one of the largest banking houses of the United States, "has passed beyond the experimental stage and now may be safely regarded as a permanent government institution." It is pointed out that this limitation is hampering since there are many depositors who have reached the legal limit, and who would further utilize the service if the total deposits which can be accepted from an individual were substantially increased.

The Postal Savings System has been the refuge of the timid ones who fear to bank their money. There are many, both native and foreign born, who have a fear of banks, but who have implicit confidence in Uncle Sam. There are those who have just reason to be fearful because they have put their faith, and their savings, into institutions which have failed for one reason or another. Some years ago a pseudo private savings bank on the New York East Side closed leaving hundreds of depositors without a penny of their life savings. Most of them were Italians and many couldn't understand what it was all about and stood patiently all night in front of the bank waiting for the return of those to whom they had entrusted their money.

It is probable that the majority of those caught in this disaster would hesitate before taking a chance on any other bank. With perhaps only a slight knowledge of English it is difficult for them to differentiate between a reputable institution and one which might be of the "fly-by-night" type.

They Trust the Government.

After the above failure the postmaster general directed that 25,000 circulars be published in the Italian language and distributed on the East Side. These told of the Postal Savings System and invited these newcomers to America to avail themselves of the security afforded by the government. As a matter of fact, leaflets telling how to make use of the Postal Savings System have been published in a great many languages so that the man coming from any part of the world may understand how he can save his money and be sure of not losing it, and they have brought thousands of depositors.

Postal savings certificates may be purchased in denominations of one, two, five, ten, twenty and 50 cents, and one, two and five dollars. The stamps take the place of a depositor's pass book or deposit slips issued by commercial banks. When a depositor wishes to withdraw any of his money he simply presents to the postmaster a stamp of the denomination which he wants cashed.

Postal savings certificates may be exchanged on January 1 and July 1 of each year for postal savings bonds bearing interest at 2 1-2 per cent. A growing appreciation of this facility was indicated during the fiscal year 1926 by the fact that such bonds to the amount of $544,160 were issued to 496 depositors, which was an increase of $213,020 over the year 1925.

Although the number of depositors decreased during the fiscal year 1926, the loss in accounts being .75 per cent, the average principal per depositor increased 2.29 per cent. Also the classification for 1926 shows that the distribution of deposits has become more widespread and a more varied use of the system is reflected. There has been likewise an increase in the percentage of native born depositors.

The framers of the original postal savings act expected that this system would encourage thrift among the people of the country, thus supplementing the activities of banking institutions; would keep in the United States a substantial portion of the large amounts which formerly were sent abroad by international money orders; would bring to light and put into circulation hoarded money, and would offer facilities where the timid and fearful might in times of financial stress place their savings in perfect security. In this way might be prevented the withdrawal from circulation of large sums at times when most needed.

Bankers Once Antagonistic.

When the Postal Savings System first went into effect banking institutions were inclined to be antagonistic toward it. There was a tendency on their part to feel that some of their legitimate business was being taken from them. It is, therefore, interesting to note what a postmaster in a large city recently said. "At this time it may be well to state that almost every one of the ten local banks holding postal savings funds has come to believe in the system as a valuable aid to their own business in training savers and circulating funds."

Postmaster General New in his report further makes the statement that the postal savings system has indeed been a refuge for the timid in the areas of bank suspensions in the west, middle west and south. It has proved a stabilizing influence in the financial circles of these regions also since the funds that are deposited with the postmasters are redeposited in the bank, thus completing a circle and showing a sympathetic co-operation with the business world. This has been frequently noted since the World war.

There are now 6,623 depositories in operation and at the end of the fiscal year the value of certificates of deposit to the credit of those making use of this method of saving was $134,178,558. As has been said before, it is believed that this amount would have been greater were it not for the present limitation of $2,500 for each depositor. Postal savings funds were held by 3,604 banks, which included national banks, state banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System, state banks which are not members of that system, and private banks under state supervision.

Miss Gladys Atnold, who underwent an operation in a Steubenville hospital, is recovering.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

A defendant in criminal court the other day acknowledged that he had committed a murder, but he couldn't fool the jury, and they voted him innocent as usual.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something! Don't wait until the cold has run its course—from your head to your throat—from throat to chest or bronchial tubes. Break up your cold before it settles in this "danger zone"; for inflammation spreads, and your bronchial tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. You feel its soothing, healing powers reaching deep down into your bronchial tubes. You feel it penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

This healing medication, absorbed into the membranes themselves, breaks up the cold, stops the cough, brings prompt and lasting relief.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough—even if bronchitis has developed—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once!

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—50c; twice as much, $1.00. 2a2c

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S. S. S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

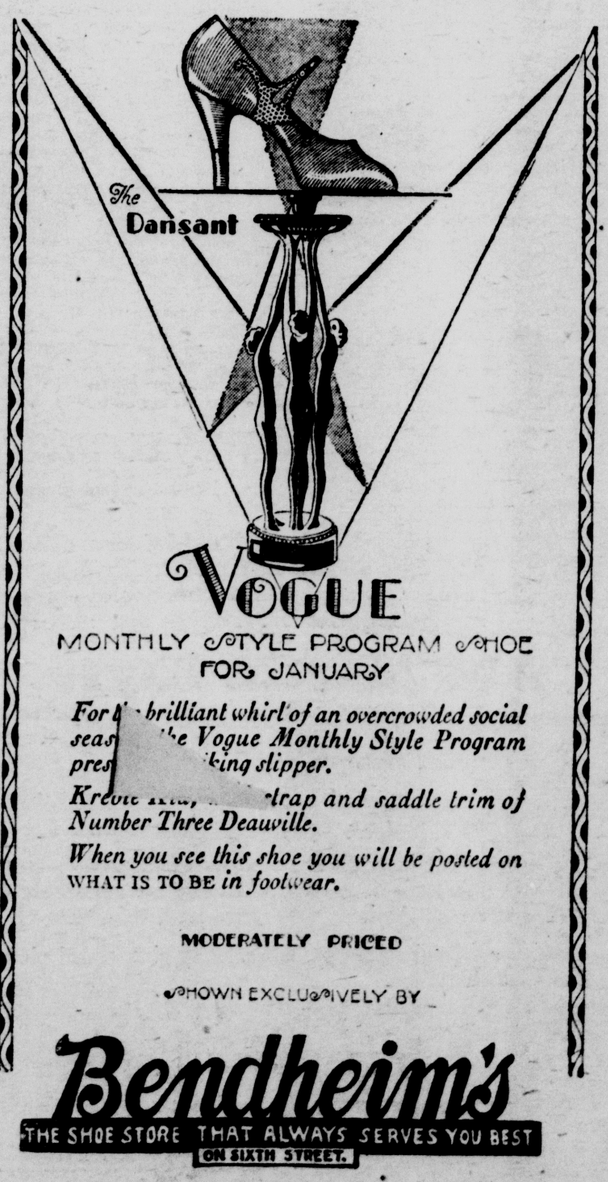

S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S. S. S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

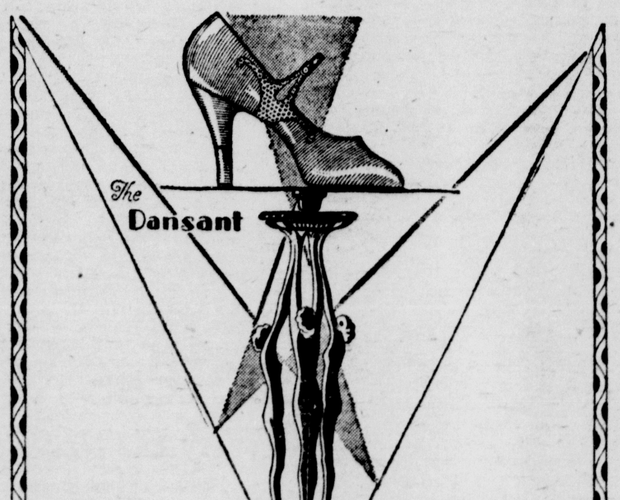

S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

A defendant in criminal court the other day acknowledged that he had committed a murder, but he couldn't fool the jury, and they voted him innocent as usual.

BELATED BUT SINCERE.

The funeral was over. The elderly widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage whistling to himself. A neighbor passed and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said, striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eph," said the supposedly bereaved one, cheerfully. "Dun't know ez I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin'—her," said the astonished neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children and always done mighty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I know that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'. But goldern her, I never did like her!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona, Jan. 1.—For no reason at all I am on my way to California for a brief stay. This train appropriately named The Chief, thunders along from Chicago to Los Angeles over the picteresque old Santa Fe trail in 63 hours. Soon there will be three day trains from New York to the coast.

One cannot help but think of the pioneers who battled their way in ox drawn prairie schooners that their perfumed descendants might enjoy a humanized Pullman service that even provides oblivion for discarded razor blades. Few touches of the old west survive.

Here and there one sees the last of the vanishing Americans. They loiter on station platforms, their hats festooned with gaudy buttons, as final sop to their love for color, complacently smoking rolled cigarettes and selling Navajo blankets to their conquerors.

The miracle of winter no longer confounds them. The automobile has solved the problem of transportation. Cities along the old trail are as sprightly as those on Long Island. Sheep herders, turning in lonely saddles to gaze, dot the plains in wake of their slow moving, grazing charges.

Now and then a figure appears in the doorway of a lean-to in the foothills waving rather pathetically—perhaps an Easterner struggling valiantly to health in the open and cheered by a brief glimpse of a civilization to which he hopes soon to return.

At a few stations wild roving dogs come down from the hills to devour scraps tossed them by thoughtful cooks from the diners. A group of them surrounded my dog like hyenas in a semi-circle. He is a city bred parlor pooch but the hair stood on his back defiantly. I was quite proud.

Therei s a light heartedness about travelers to California. Every train carries those who have thrown off the yoke of business and look forward to front porch rockers and valetudinarian ease. In the East the adenoid flourishes. Here the Adam's apple.

Chicago strikes me as the place where the west really begins. There, one sees the first touch of cattlemen in wide hats. It is always associated in my mind with Parmalee buses, colored waiters and doleful police whistles. Not even New York has the jangle and robust vitality. There is a charm to its dingy alleys, murky river and noisy clang. The lake front becoming a glorified Venice with peninsulas of ribbonlike roads unwinding along the horizon. Skyscrapers seem as high as those in New York.

In Chicago I spent an hour with James Keeley, once regarded as a thunderer of the news rooms in the days when my journalistic pin feathers were sprouting. I circled his newspaper building twice in those days trying to muster courage to ask him for a job but couldn't make it. I found him a soft voiced gentleman who would not look out of place as a curate in an English country side. The myth grew he was an editorial orge and yet he told me he had never fired a man in his life. "They fire themselves," he said. Keeley was a London street waif and his career is an American classic.

There is a sweep and majestic grandeur to Arizona and its sheer cliffs and deserts that no other state has, and I've seen them all. There are bleak portions of it to be sure that seem like wasteland but generally it is overwhelmingly beautiful. It has untold wealth never tapped and some day soon Arizona will be "discovered." Mark this prediction! I'm the bright boy incidentally who predicted the movies would never be popular.

New Mexico and its adobe houses also stir the imagination. Albuquerque is different. No American city is exactly like it. It blends the old Indian influence with modern Americanism in quaint manner. One sees the up-to-the-minute flapper tripping down to meet trains, and also the gnaried red chieftains squatting on the platform selling pots and vases.

Soon the trek across the Mojave desert and down grade into the land of roses with a back-ground of snow capped Sierras cowled in mystery. That, mesdames et messieurs, is California!

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

The Postal Savings System has been in operation over 15 years and, as has been said by one of the largest banking houses of the United States, "has passed beyond the experimental stage and now may be safely regarded as a permanent government institution." It is pointed out that this limitation is hampering since there are many depositors who have reached the legal limit, and who would further utilize the service if the total deposits which can be accepted from an individual were substantially increased.

The Postal Savings System has been the refuge of the timid ones who fear to bank their money. There are many, both native and foreign born, who have a fear of banks, but who have implicit confidence in Uncle Sam. There are those who have just reason to be fearful because they have put their faith, and their savings, into institutions which have failed for one reason or another. Some years ago a pseudo private savings bank on the New York East Side closed leaving hundreds of depositors without a penny of their life savings. Most of them were Italians and many couldn't understand what it was all about and stood patiently all night in front of the bank waiting for the return of those to whom they had entrusted their money.

It is probable that the majority of those caught in this disaster would hesitate before taking a chance on any other bank. With perhaps only a slight knowledge of English it is difficult for them to differentiate between a reputable institution and one which might be of the "fly-by-night" type.

They Trust the Government.

After the above failure the postmaster general directed that 25,000 circulars be published in the Italian language and distributed on the East Side. These told of the Postal Savings System and invited these newcomers to America to avail themselves of the security afforded by the government. As a matter of fact, leaflets telling how to make use of the Postal Savings System have been published in a great many languages so that the man coming from any part of the world may understand how he can save his money and be sure of not losing it, and they have brought thousands of depositors.

Postal savings certificates may be purchased in denominations of one, two, five, ten, twenty and 50 cents, and one, two and five dollars. The stamps take the place of a depositor's pass book or deposit slips issued by commercial banks. When a depositor wishes to withdraw any of his money he simply presents to the postmaster a stamp of the denomination which he wants cashed.

Postal savings certificates may be exchanged on January 1 and July 1 of each year for postal savings bonds bearing interest at 2 1-2 per cent. A growing appreciation of this facility was indicated during the fiscal year 1926 by the fact that such bonds to the amount of $544,160 were issued to 496 depositors, which was an increase of $213,020 over the year 1925.

Although the number of depositors decreased during the fiscal year 1926, the loss in accounts being .75 per cent, the average principal per depositor increased 2.29 per cent. Also the classification for 1926 shows that the distribution of deposits has become more widespread and a more varied use of the system is reflected. There has been likewise an increase in the percentage of native born depositors.

The framers of the original postal savings act expected that this system would encourage thrift among the people of the country, thus supplementing the activities of banking institutions; would keep in the United States a substantial portion of the large amounts which formerly were sent abroad by international money orders; would bring to light and put into circulation hoarded money, and would offer facilities where the timid and fearful might in times of financial stress place their savings in perfect security. In this way might be prevented the withdrawal from circulation of large sums at times when most needed.

Bankers Once Antagonistic.

When the Postal Savings System first went into effect banking institutions were inclined to be antagonistic toward it. There was a tendency on their part to feel that some of their legitimate business was being taken from them. It is, therefore, interesting to note what a postmaster in a large city recently said. "At this time it may be well to state that almost every one of the ten local banks holding postal savings funds has come to believe in the system as a valuable aid to their own business in training savers and circulating funds."

Postmaster General New in his report further makes the statement that the postal savings system has indeed been a refuge for the timid in the areas of bank suspensions in the west, middle west and south. It has proved a stabilizing influence in the financial circles of these regions also since the funds that are deposited with the postmasters are redeposited in the bank, thus completing a circle and showing a sympathetic co-operation with the business world. This has been frequently noted since the World war.

There are now 6,623 depositories in operation and at the end of the fiscal year the value of certificates of deposit to the credit of those making use of this method of saving was $134,178,558. As has been said before, it is believed that this amount would have been greater were it not for the present limitation of $2,500 for each depositor. Postal savings funds were held by 3,604 banks, which included national banks, state banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System, state banks which are not members of that system, and private banks under state supervision.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

A defendant in criminal court the other day acknowledged that he had committed a murder, but he couldn't fool the jury, and they voted him innocent as usual.

BELATED BUT SINCERE.

The funeral was over. The elderly widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage whistling to himself. A neighbor passed and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said,striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eph," said the supposedly bereaved one, cheerfully. "Dun't know ez I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin'—her," said the astonished neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children and always done mighty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I know that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'. But goldern her, I never did like her!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona, Jan. 1.—For no reason at all I am on my way to California for a brief stay. This train appropriately named The Chief, thunders along from Chicago to Los Angeles over the picteresque old Santa Fe trail in 63 hours. Soon there will be three day trains from New York to the coast.

One cannot help but think of the pioneers who battled their way in ox drawn prairie schooners that their perfumed descendants might enjoy a humanized Pullman service that even provides oblivion for discarded razor blades. Few touches of the old west survive.

Here and there one sees the last of the vanishing Americans. They loiter on station platforms, their hats festooned with gaudy buttons, as final sop to their love for color, complacently smoking rolled cigarettes and selling Navajo blankets to their conquerors.

The miracle of winter no longer confounds them. The automobile has solved the problem of transportation. Cities along the old trail are as sprightly as those on Long Island. Sheep herders, turning in lonely saddles to gaze, dot the plains in wake of their slow moving, grazing charges.

Now and then a figure appears in the doorway of a lean-to in the foothills waving rather pathetically—perhaps an Easterner struggling valiantly to health in the open and cheered by a brief glimpse of a civilization to which he hopes soon to return.

At a few stations wild roving dogs come down from the hills to devour scraps tossed them by thoughtful cooks from the diners. A group of them surrounded my dog like hyenas in a semi-circle. He is a city bred parlor pooch but the hair stood on his back defiantly. I was quite proud.

There is a light heartedness about travelers to California. Every train carries those who have thrown off the yoke of business and look forward to front porch rockers and valetudinarian ease. In the East the adenoid flourishes. Here the Adam's apple.

Chicago strikes me as the place where the west really begins. There, one sees the first touch of cattlemen in wide hats. It is always associated in my mind with Parmalee buses, colored waiters and doleful police whistles. Not even New York has the jangle and robust vitality. There is a charm to its dingy alleys, murky river and noisy clang. The lake front becoming a glorified Venice with peninsulas of ribbonlike roads unwinding along the horizon. Skyscrapers seem as high as those in New York.

In Chicago I spent an hour with James Keeley, once regarded as a thunderer of the news rooms in the days when my journalistic pin feathers were sprouting. I circled his newspaper building twice in those days trying to muster courage to ask him for a job but couldn't make it. I found him a soft voiced gentleman who would not look out of place as a curate in an English country side. The myth grew he was an editorial orge and yet he told me he had never fired a man in his life. "They fire themselves," he said. Keeley was a London street waif and his career is an American classic.

There is a sweep and majestic grandeur to Arizona and its sheer cliffs and deserts that no other state has, and I've seen them all. There are bleak portions of it to be sure that seem like wasteland but generally it is overwhelmingly beautiful. It has untold wealth never tapped and some day soon Arizona will be "discovered." Mark this prediction! I'm the bright boy incidentally who predicted the movies would never be popular.

New Mexico and its adobe houses also stir the imagination. Albuquerque is different. No American city is exactly like it. It blends the old Indian influence with modern Americanism in quaint manner. One sees the up-to-the-minute flapper tripping down to meet trains, and also the gnaried red chieftains squatting on the platform selling pots and vases.

Soon the trek across the Mojave desert and down grade into the land of roses with a back-ground of snow capped Sierras cowled in mystery. That, mesdames et messieurs, is California!

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

The Postal Savings System has been in operation over 15 years and, as has been said by one of the largest banking houses of the United States, "has passed beyond the experimental stage and now may be safely regarded as a permanent government institution." It is pointed out that this limitation is hampering since there are many depositors who have reached the legal limit, and who would further utilize the service if the total deposits which can be accepted from an individual were substantially increased.

The Postal Savings System has been the refuge of the timid ones who fear to bank their money. There are many, both native and foreign born, who have a fear of banks, but who have implicit confidence in Uncle Sam. There are those who have just reason to be fearful because they have put their faith, and their savings, into institutions which have failed for one reason or another. Some years ago a pseudo private savings bank on the New York East Side closed leaving hundreds of depositors without a penny of their life savings. Most of them were Italians and many couldn't understand what it was all about and stood patiently all night in front of the bank waiting for the return of those to whom they had entrusted their money.

It is probable that the majority of those caught in this disaster would hesitate before taking a chance on any other bank. With perhaps only a slight knowledge of English it is difficult for them to differentiate between a reputable institution and one which might be of the "fly-by-night" type.

They Trust the Government.

After the above failure the postmaster general directed that 25,000 circulars be published in the Italian language and distributed on the East Side. These told of the Postal Savings System and invited these newcomers to America to avail themselves of the security afforded by the government. As a matter of fact, leaflets telling how to make use of the Postal Savings System have been published in a great many languages so that the man coming from any part of the world may understand how he can save his money and be sure of not losing it, and they have brought thousands of depositors.

Postal savings certificates may be purchased in denominations of one, two, five, ten, twenty and 50 cents, and one, two and five dollars. The stamps take the place of a depositor's pass book or deposit slips issued by commercial banks. When a depositor wishes to withdraw any of his money he simply presents to the postmaster a stamp of the denomination which he wants cashed.

Postal savings certificates may be exchanged on January 1 and July 1 of each year for postal savings bonds bearing interest at 2 1-2 per cent. A growing appreciation of this facility was indicated during the fiscal year 1926 by the fact that such bonds to the amount of $544,160 were issued to 496 depositors, which was an increase of $213,020 over the year 1925.

Although the number of depositors decreased during the fiscal year 1926, the loss in accounts being .75 per cent, the average principal per depositor increased 2.29 per cent. Also the classification for 1926 shows that the distribution of deposits has become more widespread and a more varied use of the system is reflected. There has been likewise an increase in the percentage of native born depositors.

The framers of the original postal savings act expected that this system would encourage thrift among the people of the country, thus supplementing the activities of banking institutions; would keep in the United States a substantial portion of the large amounts which formerly were sent abroad by international money orders; would bring to light and put into circulation hoarded money, and would offer facilities where the timid and fearful might in times of financial stress place their savings in perfect security. In this way might be prevented the withdrawal from circulation of large sums at times when most needed.

Bankers Once Antagonistic.

When the Postal Savings System first went into effect banking institutions were inclined to be antagonistic toward it. There was a tendency on their part to feel that some of their legitimate business was being taken from them. It is, therefore, interesting to note what a postmaster in a large city recently said. "At this time it may be well to state that almost every one of the ten local banks holding postal savings funds has come to believe in the system as a valuable aid to their own business in training savers and circulating funds."

Postmaster General New in his report further makes the statement that the postal savings system has indeed been a refuge for the timid in the areas of bank suspensions in the west, middle west and south. It has proved a stabilizing influence in the financial circles of these regions also since the funds that are deposited with the postmasters are redeposited in the bank, thus completing a circle and showing a sympathetic co-operation with the business world. This has been frequently noted since the World war.

There are now 6,623 depositories in operation and at the end of the fiscal year the value of certificates of deposit to the credit of those making use of this method of saving was $134,178,558. As has been said before, it is believed that this amount would have been greater were it not for the present limitation of $2,500 for each depositor. Postal savings funds were held by 3,604 banks, which included national banks, state banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System, state banks which are not members of that system, and private banks under state supervision.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S. S. S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something! Don't wait until the cold has run its course—from your head to your throat—from throat to chest or bronchial tubes. Break up your cold before it settles in this "danger zone"; for inflammation spreads, and your bronchial tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. You feel its soothing, healing powers reaching deep down into your bronchial tubes. You feel it penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

This healing medication, absorbed into the membranes themselves, breaks up the cold, stops the cough, brings prompt and lasting relief.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough—even if bronchitis has developed—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once!

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—50c; twice as much, $1.00. 2a2o

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—After reaching a slightly higher range of prices in the first period today, the industrial stocks were subjected to further selling pressure and the market developed an irregular tone. Motor stocks and a few of the independent oils were the leaders in this movement, but in most cases the highest prices for the period were registered at the opening, with a gradual tapering off as the session proceeded.

Uneasiness in the Mexican oil laws situation resulted in further heaviness in the Pan American and American Smelting stocks, which reached the low levels of the movement.

Selling pressure was more persistent in the second hour and prices of the bulk of the market leaders settled down to a lower range. Baldwin locomotive declined about 4 points to 151½; U. S. steel was down a point and Pullman 2. The volume of trading at the low levels was comparatively small, and the market appeared to be marking time rather than entering a definite movement in either direction.

Call money unchanged at 5 per cent.

In connection with their retirement the custom was inaugurated of presenting each retiring employe with a certificate, signed by the president of the company, setting forth his length of service and position and the fact that he has been relieved from active duty and placed upon the railroad's "Roll of Honor."

The certificates were delivered to retiring employes by divison superintendents, heads of departments or other employing officers. Each was accompanied by a personal letter of congratulations and good wishes.

A simple design has been adopted for the certificates. The name of the Pennsylvania railroad is at the top, with an engraved keystone in red containing the interlaced initials, "P. R. R." in gilt, immediately below. In the body of the documents appears the following: "This certifies that (name and position of retiring employe) has been relieved of active duty after—years of service, and that his name is enrolled on the Roll of Honor." Below the date is the president's personal signature.

Not only will the new certificates be issued to employes pensioned today and in the future, but all living "Honor Roll" men will receive them as fast as they can be prepared.

Charles O. Fulmer, tool maker, Indianapolis division, is the oldest employe in point of service, who retired yesterday. He has been on the payrolls of the Pennsylvania railroad for 56 years, eight months, constituting one of the longest records of employment since the pension system was established 27 years ago.

Of the total number of employes now retiring four have been in the employ of the company for 50 years or more each, while 54 have had records of 40 years service or more. Those with a half century of more of duty to their credit below:

Western Region — Charles O. Fulmer, tool maker, Indianapolis division, 1215 Pleasant street, Indianapolis, Ind., 56 years, eight months of duty; Edward Flanagan, track foreman, Cincinnati division, Cedarville, O., 51 years, eight months of duty.

Altoona Works—Joseph W. Fleming, Jr., painter, Altoona car shop, 224 First avenue, Altoona, Pa., 54 years, four months of duty.

General Offices — Robert Trimble, assistant chief engineer, Glen Osborne, Pa., 51 years, six months of service.

Of the 86 men retiring from the railroad's service 42 are on the payroll of the Eastern Region; 12 on the Central Region; 17 on the Western Region; nine at the Altoona Works; three in the general offices at Broad street station, and three of the Long Island railroad.

Since the establishment of the railroad's pension plan on January 1, 1900, a total of 19,809 employes have been retired under its provisions. Of these 11,183 have died, and 8,262 are still living and receiving pensions.

The Priceless Voice of Martinelli

Why He Recommends Lucky Strike —Because "It's Toasted"

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI, famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera of New York City, is a great singer and he prefers Lucky Strikes for two reasons—greater enjoyment and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment, and, second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—After reaching a slightly higher range of prices in the first period today, the industrial stocks were subjected to further selling pressure and the market developed an irregular tone. Motor stocks and a few of the independent oils were the leaders in this movement, but in most cases the highest prices for the period were registered at the opening, with a gradual tapering off as the session proceeded.

Uneasiness in the Mexican oil laws situation resulted in further heaviness in the Pan American and American Smelting stocks, which reached the low levels of the movement.

Selling pressure was more persistent in the second hour and prices of the bulk of the market leaders settled down to a lower range. Baldwin locomotive declined about 4 points to 151½; U. S. steel was down a point and Pullman 2. The volume of trading at the low levels was comparatively small, and the market appeared to be marking time rather than entering a definite movement in either direction.

Call money unchanged at 5 per cent.

NEGRO ADMITS MYSTERY DEATH IN CINCINNATI

VICTIM FOUGHT

Body Was Found in Big Miami River.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 3.—After nearly three months of rigid investigation the mystery slaying of Beulah Purvis, 19-year-old "cotton-stockinged" country girl of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, stood solved today.

Joseph Carr, 23, alias Joseph Elliott, negro, confressed that he committed the crime that has baffled city, county and private investigators since October 20.

He made the confession to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Basler yesterday following his arrest Saturday on a burglarly charge.

"I grabbed her as she stepped from a street car at Valley Junction," he related, "and when she pulled off her slipper and pounded me with it, I just kept hitting her until she fainted."

Attacked Victim.

This, without any show of emotion, the powerful negro, described by Assistant Prosecutor Basler as the "perfect gorilla type" slowly unveiled the mystery that had its incipiency when the battered and half naked body of the Indiana "hired girl" was found in the Big Miami river near here last fall.

"I picked her up and started for the river," he continued, according to his confession, "she was very heavy, it seemed and I rested three times before I got to the bridge."

He said he carried her under the bridge and there attacked the young girl.

"Then I tried to awaken her, but she didn't answer, so I waded into the river with her body and dropped it," he said.

Although police and county authorities primarily though that the Purvis girl's murder centered about a Harrison, O., roller skating rink, where she often went, although regularly spurned because she was a "cotton-stockinged" country girl—they declared today that the negro's confession dovetailed with all their evidence.

He rehearsed the crime flawlessly, they said.

Legislature's Meet

omies in operating expenses of state governmental departments.

Both administration and anti-administration forces agree that the state will incur a deficit of approximately $10,000,000 within the next two years, unless expenditures are curbed, or tax laws revised.

Some Republican legislators concur in the recommendation, credited to Governor Donahey, that the legislature raise the corporation franchise tax rate to what it was before the legislators reduced it two years ago. The revision, it is estimated, reduced the state's income about $4,000,000 during the past two years.

Urge Abolition of Uniform Tax.

Abolition of the uniform tax rule in Ohio and enactment of measures providing for new forms of indirect taxation, it is said, will be urged by some of the legislators as a means of curing the state's financial ills. A bill, it was indicated, will be offered providing for a tax levy of three cents per gallon on all fuel used for motor vehicles in Ohio. The present tax is two cents per gallon.

Bills, embodying recommendations of the joint legislative committee on highways, providing for an annual expenditure of $25,000,000 for construction and maintenance of highway; for creation of a state highway board and separation of the state highway department of public works, and for reclassification of the state's roads into state, county and township systems, are scheduled to be introduced.

Pointing out that, under existing state laws, the state highway director must, also, be state superintendent of public works, chief highway engineer and state building commissioner, a number of legislators are urging that a law be enacted providing for appointment of a state highway commissioner by a state highway board, the commissioner serving for not less than four years.

Dealing with the problem of financing highways, members of the joint highway committee recommend appropriation of $8,000,000 for new construction in addition to $2,750,000 federal aid money; $16,000,000 for repairs, widening and reconstruction of bridges and highways on the state highway system, and $1,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings on this system.

Modification of "Dry" Acts.

A bitter fight is expected to develop this legislative session when a number of legislators seek enactment of measures intended to modify provisions of the state's "dry" acts.

State Senator George H. Bender, Cleveland, Republican, has announced his intention of offering a bill providing for limitation of the powers of justices of the peace to their own townships.

Legislators who are ardent supporters of views expressed by officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League are expected to oppose vigorously the proposed Bender bill as well as other attempts to amend Ohio's dry laws. League officials have registered vigorous disapproval of contemplated measures which, they believe, will "weaken" the law enforcement statutes.

Other strenuous contests this session are anticipated if legislators make good their threats to offer bills permitting Bible-reading in the public schools, and repealing the Pence law which permits utility companies to collect increased rates, under bond, 120 days after their new schedules have been filed with the state untilities commission, and to continue collecting the boosted rates pending determination of a permanent rate by the commission.

The fight over the Bible-reading bill, vetoed by Governor Donahey, was one of the most spectacular contests during the last session of the Ohio legislature.

Donahey Urges Short Term.

Some legislators do not favor outright repeal of the Pence act. They indicate, however, their willingness to support a bill fixing a certain time limit within which the state utilities commission must make final disposition of the proposal to change rates. Utility companies are expected to put up a big fight against all attempts to prohibit them from collecting increased rates under bond.

Recommendations that the session be short and that few laws be enacted are expected to be made by Governor Donahey in his message which he will submit to the legislature next week. Among other things the governor's message, it is understood, will deal with taxation, penal institutions and proposed changes in the election laws.

The governor, it is understood, will oppose proposed changes in the primary election law; will recommend legislation to relieve overcrowded conditions at the Ohio penitentiary and other state penal institutions, and favor amending the Dempsey corporation franchise act so as to increase the revenue from foreign and domestic corporations.

Bills providing for the care of the state's feeble-minded dependents, bettering conditions in state institutions, and changing the school system will be included in the avalanche of measures to be dumped into the legislative hopper here this winter.

Find Loaded Gun; Arrest Six Persons

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 3.—Four women and two men were under arrest here today, pending investigation, following their detention yesterday when a loaded shotgun was found in a taxi in which they were riding.

LEVY OF TAXES ON BILLBOARDS IS PROPOSED

Legislature Aims to Increase State's Revenue.

OTHER BOOSTS

Three Possible Plans for Financial Policy Suggested.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3. — Recommendations that Ohio legislators this winter enact additional taxation measures, which, it is believed, will increase the state's revenues $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 a year, are on file with legislative leaders here today.

These recommendations, submitted in a partial report by the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy, favor the levying of taxes on billboards, a one-third increase in the corporation franchise taxes, increases in excise taxes on utilities other than railroads, a stamp tax on conveyances, deeds, etc., similar to that collected in 1924 by the U. S. government, and a mortgage recording tax.

"It is apparent that present capital outlay appropriations cannot be financed without substantial increases in revenue and no additional projects can be thought of without still greater revenues being required," reads the committee's report.

The committee suggests the following three possible plans for dealing with the state's future financial policy:

"First: Reduce expenses, combine departments where possible and eliminate unnecessary employes." This cannot be accomplished, the committee admitted, to a point where a deficit in the state's general revenue fund could be avoided.

"Second: Eliminate all expenditures for capital outlay except those for new highway construction necessary to obtain federal aid money, unless new taxes are levied to provide funds.

"Third: If the present rate of current expense and permanent improvement expense is to continue, it will be necessary to levy additional taxes which will produce substantial additional revenues."

LATIN-AMERICA SCORNS U. S.

Washington Alarmed Over Evidences of Unpopularity.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Coolidge and his advisers are considerably disturbed over the increasing evidences of American unpopularity in the countries of Latin-America.

These evidences have been accompanied by circumstantial reports that a strong movement is afoot in Central and South America, backed by powerful influences, for the organization of a real Pan-American union, with the United States on the outside looking in, rather than being the directing force, as is the case with the existing union.

It has for its object the welding of the Spanish-speaking peoples of the western hemisphere into a cohesive organization to combat what many South American statesmen consider the persistent encroachment of "Yankee Imperialism," and "dollar diplomacy."

There is reason to believe, from confidential reports reaching Washington, that this movement has gained considerable actual headway in the last few months, and that it centers in Mexico City, where the Calles government shows increasing signs of permanency and power. It is known, for instance, that the project has been seriously discussed, and at length, by high Mexican officials and representatives of other South and Central American countries in Mexico City.

He probably will be in bed for several weeks.

American Good Will Flyers Welcomed To Guatemala City

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Jan. 3.—The American good will flyers, having been welcomed to Guatemala by the president and his cabinet, are preparing to leave here on Tuesday for San Salvador.

The flyers reached here after an adventurous flight from Salinas Cruz, Mexico. Part of the day they flew through a storm.

The flight over the mountains into Guatemala was made at an altitude of 8,000 feet.

Lisbon Church's History.

The history of the Lisbon church dates back to August, 1827, when the Mahoning Baptist association made up of about 15 or 20 churches in the local district met in a building, now a dwelling, located just east of the Moose building, on East High street, Lisbon. Among those attending the meeting was Walter Scott, who taught at an academy in Steubenville, a graduate of the University of Edinburg, one of the best educated men in the west, a natural orator and a born genius. Scott came to Lisbon in November, 1827 and conducted a series of revival meetings. His first convert was William Amend.

Under Scott's leadership his converts soon dropped the name of the Baptist church and became known as the Disciples of Christ. A new edifice was erected in 1841. In 1875 the house of worship was reconstructed at a cost of $5,000. Rev. William Baxter was in charge of the church at that time, his pastorate stretching over a period of 12 years.

While Rev. E. R. Black was pastor of the church in 1888, the Christian Endeavor Society was organized. The pipe organ was installed in 1894 while C. M. Oliphant was pastor. Two years later while Rev. A. B. Russell was pastor a missionary society was formed. A mission band and Junior Christian Endeavor Society followed. In 1900 while Rev. George Fowler was pastor an Aid Society was formed.

During June, 1909, plans were prepared for a new building. The present structure was erected and dedicated in February 6, 1910. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by H. Newton Miller, who was then secretary of the Ohio Christian Missionary society. The pastor then was Rev. Traverse Harrison.

Ladies of the church formed a Silver Circle in 1912 as a means of bringing about a closer acquaintance among members. The Young Ladies' Circle was later organized for the younger women.

In March, 1925, Rev. R. J. Bennett took charge of the church which then had a membership of 500.

GRAND JURORS OPEN SESSION

Felix J. Savage, East Liverpool, is Named Foreman.

The January term of common pleas court opened at Lisbon at 11 o'clock this morning with the empaneling of the grand jury.

The jury is composed of 14 men and one woman. Nine men from the Lisbon district were placed in the jury box because of the illness of others who had been summoned.

The jurors are: Mrs. Cora McClain, Salem; A. W. Stiver, Salem; Edward Foulks, Calcutta; Felix J. Savage, East Liverpool; Gus Alexander, East Liverpool; H. S. Burnett, Blair Allison, William P. Whitacre, Bernard Fultner, John Suffle, George Bradbury, Louis Endley, Elmer Richardson, Howard Frazer and Stewart Patterson, all of Lisbon.

Savage was appointed foreman by the court, and William Frazier was sworn in as court constable.

The charge of the court to the jury occupied 25 minutes and the jury went into session in court room No. 2 at 11:30 o'clock.

CHESTER HIGH FIVE WINNER

Former School Stars Defeated in Season's Opener.

Chester High basketball five opened the season Friday night by defeating, 18 to 13, a team composed of former Chester High stars in the old merry-go-round building at Rock Springs park, which has been fitted up as a playing floor.

Both squads showed up to good advantage considering they had little practice. They battled on even terms for the greater part of the game, but during the last few minutes Coach Wilde's lads rolled up enough points to nose out the veterans.

Lineups and summaries:

Chester High—Simcox and Miller, forwards; Bartley, center; Kimble and Hinds, guards.

Ex-High—Ewing and Bennett, forwards; Pinney, center; Tuttle and Campbell, guards.

Substitutions—Hoskinson for Hinds. Field goals—Simcox 3, Kimble 4, Ewing, Pinney, 2, Campbell 2.

Foul goals—Simcox, Bartley 2, Hinds, Campbell 2, Tuttle.

Dry Chief Says Solution of Poison Rum Problem Looms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The government can stop poisoning liquor without materially interfering with the effectiveness of prohibition enforcement, it was admitted today by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief.

"We will soon have this problem solved," said Andrews. "Both government and private chemists are now working on new formulas (non-poisonous) and we expect results shortly."

Andrew's statement was made just as congress was convening again at the capitol, with the wets prepared to wage warfare against the continuance of fatal poisons being placed in industrial alcohol.

Kentucky Man Dies In Gun Fight With Deputy Sheriff

FLEMING, Ky., Jan. 3.—Jacob Noble, 22, was dead here today following a pistol battle with Deputy Sheriff William Marshall near Blackmey, yesterday. According to reports here, Noble, a member of the noted feud family of Breathitt county, resisted arrest, and was killed by the deputy after seriously wounding him.

Beatty is Fined $25 on Disorderly Conduct Charge

James C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, was fined $25 and costs upon a disorderly conduct charge at a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley, Friday afternoon. The judge reserved his decision on the charge of intoxication also filed against Beatty.

Beatty was arrested by Patrolman James Haley in Larkins' restaurant Christmas eve. At the trial he was represented by Attorney George T. Farrell, Lisbon, while Solicitor Frank Hoover and Attorney Blaine H. Cochran appeared for the city.

Beatty has been given 10 days in which to carry his case on error to the common pleas court, and in the meantime he will not be required to pay his fine. Judge Hanley has not indicated when he will render a decision on the intoxication charge.

The court room was crowded during the trial.

Felsch Will Reveal New Scandal if He is Paid $1,000

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 3.—Oscar (Happy) Felsch, member of the Chicago "Black Sox," and a teammate of Charles Risberg, declared today he was ready to come to Chicago and reveal a "new baseball scandal" to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

"If Landis pays me $1,000 I will tell a lot more about baseball than has been told," Felsch said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner was not at his office today but it was stated Oscar Felsch, former White Sox player, who has promised to reveal another baseball scandal, would probably be brought here to talk with Landis.

It was stated the same offer made Risberg would probably be given Felsch. Risberg was paid his expenses here and also a sum of money.

The amount paid Risberg has not been made public but was believed to have been at least $1,000.

Retrenchment

of finance and common sense demands that we balance our budget and that our appropriations shall not exceed our revenues.

"The revenues of the state will be equally and justly distributed to the various departments and activities, but if these demands exceed the amount that is available for expenditures there is only one course open and that is retrenchment. This has been the policy of the administration at Washington; it, also, is going to be the policy in Ohio.

"The burden of taxation cannot be increased, unless it is necessary to maintain the credit of the state," Gray said. "This is one of the problems of this session and I am sure every house member will meet the responsibility fearlessly."

The house recessed at noon until 2:30 p. m. today. The senate, shortly after noon, recessed until 10 a. m. Tuesday, when the legislators will meet in joint session in the house chamber and canvass the vote cast at the November election for state officers, including governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state and state treasurer.

The house members this afternoon were to continue their work of organization.

Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, Harpster, called the senate to order. Secretary of State Thad Brown wielded the gavel in the house pending selection of Speaker Gray.

The gavel used by Secretary Brown was made from wood taken from the Washington elm, Cambridge, Mass., the tree under which George Washington assumed command of the Continental army in July, 1775.

Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, state supreme court, administered the oath of office to the house members. The senators were sworn in by Associate Justice Robert H. Day.

In both legislative branches selections recently made in the republican senate and house caucuses for assistants to the clerk, assistant sergeant-at-arms, stenographers, pages and other minor official positions were approved.

Safe Crackers Get $750.

THIEVES BATTER SAFE, GET $15

Robbers Break Into Sand Company's Offices.

Safe in the office of the East Liverpool Sand company, along the river front near the foot of Jefferson street, was battered open by thieves, believed to be amateurs, Saturday night, aand about $15 or $20 in cash was taken.

The robbery was discovered at 8:00 o'clock Sunday morning by Harry Hoffman, secretary-treasurer. The combination on a light safe, built as a protection against fire, had been knocked off and the doors opened.

The culprits also took a small amount of cash from another safe in the office, which was unlocked. No attempt was made to ransack desks. Entrance to the building was made by smashing a window.

Because of the isolated location of the sand company office and the lack of protection, little money is kept at the office at any time, Hoffman said.

'COTTON-STOCKINGED' COUNTRY GIRL'S MURDER SOLVED

VICTIM FOUGHT

Body Was Found in Big Miami River.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 3.—After nearly three months of rigid investigation the mystery slaying of Beulah Purvis, 19-year-old "cotton-stockinged" country girl of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, stood solved today.

Joseph Carr, 23, alias Joseph Elliott, negro, confressed that he committed the crime that has baffled city, county and private investigators since October 20.

He made the confession to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Basler yesterday following his arrest Saturday on a burglarly charge.

"I grabbed her as she stepped from a street car at Valley Junction," he related, "and when she pulled off her slipper and pounded me with it, I just kept hitting her until she fainted."

Attacked Victim.

This, without any show of emotion, the powerful negro, described by Assistant Prosecutor Basler as the "perfect gorilla type" slowly unveiled the mystery that had its incipiency when the battered and half naked body of the Indiana "hired girl" was found in the Big Miami river near here last fall.

"I picked her up and started for the river," he continued, according to his confession, "she was very heavy, it seemed and I rested three times before I got to the bridge."

He said he carried her under the bridge and there attacked the young girl.

"Then I tried to awaken her, but she didn't answer, so I waded into the river with her body and dropped it," he said.

Although police and county authorities primarily though that the Purvis girl's murder centered about a Harrison, O., roller skating rink, where she often went, although regularly spurned because she was a "cotton-stockinged" country girl—they declared today that the negro's confession dovetailed with all their evidence.

He rehearsed the crime flawlessly, they said.

Legislature's Meet

omies in operating expenses of state governmental departments.

Both administration and anti-administration forces agree that the state will incur a deficit of approximately $10,000,000 within the next two years, unless expenditures are curbed, or tax laws revised.

Some Republican legislators concur in the recommendation, credited to Governor Donahey, that the legislature raise the corporation franchise tax rate to what it was before the legislators reduced it two years ago. The revision, it is estimated, reduced the state's income about $4,000,000 during the past two years.

Urge Abolition of Uniform Tax.

Abolition of the uniform tax rule in Ohio and enactment of measures providing for new forms of indirect taxation, it is said, will be urged by some of the legislators as a means of curing the state's financial ills. A bill, it was indicated, will be offered providing for a tax levy of three cents per gallon on all fuel used for motor vehicles in Ohio. The present tax is two cents per gallon.

Bills, embodying recommendations of the joint legislative committee on highways, providing for an annual expenditure of $25,000,000 for construction and maintenance of highway; for creation of a state highway board and separation of the state highway department of public works, and for reclassification of the state's roads into state, county and township systems, are scheduled to be introduced.

Pointing out that, under existing state laws, the state highway director must, also, be state superintendent of public works, chief highway engineer and state building commissioner, a number of legislators are urging that a law be enacted providing for appointment of a state highway commissioner by a state highway board, the commissioner serving for not less than four years.

Dealing with the problem of financing highways, members of the joint highway committee recommend appropriation of $8,000,000 for new construction in addition to $2,750,000 federal aid money; $16,000,000 for repairs, widening and reconstruction of bridges and highways on the state highway system, and $1,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings on this system.

Modification of "Dry" Acts.

A bitter fight is expected to develop this legislative session when a number of legislators seek enactment of measures intended to modify provisions of the state's "dry" acts.

State Senator George H. Bender, Cleveland, Republican, has announced his intention of offering a bill providing for limitation of the powers of justices of the peace to their own townships.

Legislators who are ardent supporters of views expressed by officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League are expected to oppose vigorously the proposed Bender bill as well as other attempts to amend Ohio's dry laws. League officials have registered vigorous disapproval of contemplated measures which, they believe, will "weaken" the law enforcement statutes.

Other strenuous contests this session are anticipated if legislators make good their threats to offer bills permitting Bible-reading in the public schools, and repealing the Pence law which permits utility companies to collect increased rates, under bond, 120 days after their new schedules have been filed with the state untilities commission, and to continue collecting the boosted rates pending determination of a permanent rate by the commission.

The fight over the Bible-reading bill, vetoed by Governor Donahey, was one of the most spectacular contests during the last session of the Ohio legislature.

Donahey Urges Short Term.

Some legislators do not favor outright repeal of the Pence act. They indicate, however, their willingness to support a bill fixing a certain time limit within which the state utilities commission must make final disposition of the proposal to change rates. Utility companies are expected to put up a big fight against all attempts to prohibit them from collecting increased rates under bond.

Recommendations that the session be short and that few laws be enacted are expected to be made by Governor Donahey in his message which he will submit to the legislature next week. Among other things the governor's message, it is understood, will deal with taxation, penal institutions and proposed changes in the election laws.

The governor, it is understood, will oppose proposed changes in the primary election law; will recommend legislation to relieve overcrowded conditions at the Ohio penitentiary and other state penal institutions, and favor amending the Dempsey corporation franchise act so as to increase the revenue from foreign and domestic corporations.

Bills providing for the care of the state's feeble-minded dependents, bettering conditions in state institutions, and changing the school system will be included in the avalanche of measures to be dumped into the legislative hopper here this winter.

Find Loaded Gun; Arrest Six Persons

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 3.—Four women and two men were under arrest here today, pending investigation, following their detention yesterday when a loaded shotgun was found in a taxi in which they were riding.

LEVY OF TAXES ON BILLBOARDS IS PROPOSED

Legislature Aims to Increase State's Revenue.

OTHER BOOSTS

Three Possible Plans for Financial Policy Suggested.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3. — Recommendations that Ohio legislators this winter enact additional taxation measures, which, it is believed, will increase the state's revenues $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 a year, are on file with legislative leaders here today.

These recommendations, submitted in a partial report by the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy, favor the levying of taxes on billboards, a one-third increase in the corporation franchise taxes, increases in excise taxes on utilities other than railroads, a stamp tax on conveyances, deeds, etc., similar to that collected in 1924 by the U. S. government, and a mortgage recording tax.

"It is apparent that present capital outlay appropriations cannot be financed without substantial increases in revenue and no additional projects can be thought of without still greater revenues being required," reads the committee's report.

The committee suggests the following three possible plans for dealing with the state's future financial policy:

"First: Reduce expenses, combine departments where possible and eliminate unnecessary employes." This cannot be accomplished, the committee admitted, to a point where a deficit in the state's general revenue fund could be avoided.

"Second: Eliminate all expenditures for capital outlay except those for new highway construction necessary to obtain federal aid money, unless new taxes are levied to provide funds.

"Third: If the present rate of current expense and permanent improvement expense is to continue, it will be necessary to levy additional taxes which will produce substantial additional revenues."

LATIN-AMERICA SCORNS U. S.

Washington Alarmed Over Evidences of Unpopularity.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Coolidge and his advisers are considerably disturbed over the increasing evidences of American unpopularity in the countries of Latin-America.

These evidences have been accompanied by circumstantial reports that a strong movement is afoot in Central and South America, backed by powerful influences, for the organization of a real Pan-American union, with the United States on the outside looking in, rather than being the directing force, as is the case with the existing union.

It has for its object the welding of the Spanish-speaking peoples of the western hemisphere into a cohesive organization to combat what many South American statesmen consider the persistent encroachment of "Yankee Imperialism," and "dollar diplomacy."

There is reason to believe, from confidential reports reaching Washington, that this movement has gained considerable actual headway in the last few months, and that it centers in Mexico City, where the Calles government shows increasing signs of permanency and power. It is known, for instance, that the project has been seriously discussed, and at length, by high Mexican officials and representatives of other South and Central American countries in Mexico City.

Lisbon Church's History.

The history of the Lisbon church dates back to August, 1827, when the Mahoning Baptist association made up of about 15 or 20 churches in the local district met in a building, now a dwelling, located just east of the Moose building, on East High street, Lisbon. Among those attending the meeting was Walter Scott, who taught at an academy in Steubenville, a graduate of the University of Edinburg, one of the best educated men in the west, a natural orator and a born genius. Scott came to Lisbon in November, 1827 and conducted a series of revival meetings. His first convert was William Amend.

Under Scott's leadership his converts soon dropped the name of the Baptist church and became known as the Disciples of Christ. A new edifice was erected in 1841. In 1875 the house of worship was reconstructed at a cost of $5,000. Rev. William Baxter was in charge of the church at that time, his pastorate stretching over a period of 12 years.

While Rev. E. R. Black was pastor of the church in 1888, the Christian Endeavor Society was organized. The pipe organ was installed in 1894 while C. M. Oliphant was pastor. Two years later while Rev. A. B. Russell was pastor a missionary society was formed. A mission band and Junior Christian Endeavor Society followed. In 1900 while Rev. George Fowler was pastor an Aid Society was formed.

During June, 1909, plans were prepared for a new building. The present structure was erected and dedicated in February 6, 1910. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by H. Newton Miller, who was then secretary of the Ohio Christian Missionary society. The pastor then was Rev. Traverse Harrison.

Ladies of the church formed a Silver Circle in 1912 as a means of bringing about a closer acquaintance among members. The Young Ladies' Circle was later organized for the younger women.

In March, 1925, Rev. R. J. Bennett took charge of the church which then had a membership of 500.

Chester High basketball five opened the season Friday night by defeating, 18 to 13, a team composed of former Chester High stars in the old merry-go-round building at Rock Springs park, which has been fitted up as a playing floor.

Both squads showed up to good advantage considering they had little practice. They battled on even terms for the greater part of the game, but during the last few minutes Coach Wilde's lads rolled up enough points to nose out the veterans.

Lineups and summaries:

Chester High—Simcox and Miller, forwards; Bartley, center; Kimble and Hinds, guards.

Ex-High—Ewing and Bennett, forwards; Pinney, center; Tuttle and Campbell, guards.

Substitutions—Hoskinson for Hinds.

Dry Chief Says Solution of Poison Rum Problem Looms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The government can stop poisoning liquor without materially interfering with the effectiveness of prohibition enforcement, it was admitted today by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief.

"We will soon have this problem solved," said Andrews. "Both government and private chemists are now working on new formulas (non-poisonous) and we expect results shortly."

Andrew's statement was made just as congress was convening again at the capitol, with the wets prepared to wage warfare against the continuance of fatal poisons being placed in industrial alcohol.

Beatty is Fined $25 on Disorderly Conduct Charge

James C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, was fined $25 and costs upon a disorderly conduct charge at a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley, Friday afternoon. The judge reserved his decision on the charge of intoxication also filed against Beatty.

Beatty was arrested by Patrolman James Haley in Larkins' restaurant Christmas eve. At the trial he was represented by Attorney George T. Farrell, Lisbon, while Solicitor Frank Hoover and Attorney Blaine H. Cochran appeared for the city.

Beatty has been given 10 days in which to carry his case on error to the common pleas court, and in the meantime he will not be required to pay his fine. Judge Hanley has not indicated when he will render a decision on the intoxication charge.

The court room was crowded during the trial.

Felsch Will Reveal New Scandal if He is Paid $1,000

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 3.—Oscar (Happy) Felsch, member of the Chicago "Black Sox," and a teammate of Charles Risberg, declared today he was ready to come to Chicago and reveal a "new baseball scandal" to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

"If Landis pays me $1,000 I will tell a lot more about baseball than has been told," Felsch said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner was not at his office today but it was stated Oscar Felsch, former White Sox player, who has promised to reveal another baseball scandal, would probably be brought here to talk with Landis.

It was stated the same offer made Risberg would probably be given Felsch. Risberg was paid his expenses here and also a sum of money.

The amount paid Risberg has not been made public but was believed to have been at least $1,000.

of finance and common sense demands that we balance our budget and that our appropriations shall not exceed our revenues.

"The revenues of the state will be equally and justly distributed to the various departments and activities, but if these demands exceed the amount that is available for expenditures there is only one course open and that is retrenchment. This has been the policy of the administration at Washington; it, also, is going to be the policy in Ohio.

"The burden of taxation cannot be increased, unless it is necessary to maintain the credit of the state," Gray said. "This is one of the problems of this session and I am sure every house member will meet the responsibility fearlessly."

The house recessed at noon until 2:30 p. m. today. The senate, shortly after noon, recessed until 10 a. m. Tuesday, when the legislators will meet in joint session in the house chamber and canvass the vote cast at the November election for state officers, including governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state and state treasurer.

The house members this afternoon were to continue their work of organization.

Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, Harpster, called the senate to order. Secretary of State Thad Brown wielded the gavel in the house pending selection of Speaker Gray.

The gavel used by Secretary Brown was made from wood taken from the Washington elm, Cambridge, Mass., the tree under which George Washington assumed command of the Continental army in July, 1775.

Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, state supreme court, administered the oath of office to the house members. The senators were sworn in by Associate Justice Robert H. Day.

In both legislative branches selections recently made in the republican senate and house caucuses for assistants to the clerk, assistant sergeant-at-arms, stenographers, pages and other minor official positions were approved.

Robbers Break Into Sand Company's Offices.

Safe in the office of the East Liverpool Sand company, along the river front near the foot of Jefferson street, was battered open by thieves, believed to be amateurs, Saturday night, aand about $15 or $20 in cash was taken.

The robbery was discovered at 8:00 o'clock Sunday morning by Harry Hoffman, secretary-treasurer. The combination on a light safe, built as a protection against fire, had been knocked off and the doors opened.

The culprits also took a small amount of cash from another safe in the office, which was unlocked. No attempt was made to ransack desks. Entrance to the building was made by smashing a window.

Because of the isolated location of the sand company office and the lack of protection, little money is kept at the office at any time, Hoffman said.

There were 71 cases filed in common pleas during December, and of this number 24 were actions in divorce.

TUBERCULIN TEST FUNDS NEEDED

A meeting of the Columbiana County Tuberculosis league is expected to be held within a few weeks, when it is proposed to pledge financial support for the completion of the tuberculin cattle test in this county.

In a report filed with county authorities by the Columbiana County Farm Bureau, it is declared that the county-wide test will be finished within a few weeks, and that probably eight or 10 herds remain untested.

It was said the support of the sheriff's office will be enlisted under Section 112-18 of the General Code of the state when herd owners refuse to permit their cattle to be tested. Interference with such test work subjects the owner to a fine of not less than $100 or more than $300 and imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

State and federal agencies have paid $175,000 for indemnities in the county since the test work began.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, WITH ADVENT OF 1927, IS DECIDEDLY OLDER MAN THAN EXECUTIVE WHO SAW YEAR 1926 COME IN

By Charles P. Stewart.

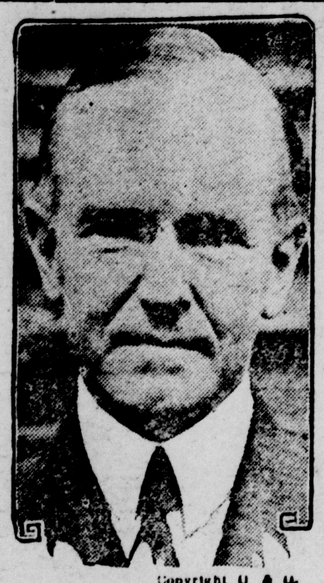

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The President Coolidge, with the arrival of 1927, is a decidedly older looking man than the President Coolidge who saw the year 1926 come in.

The last three months have been trying ones, politically, for the chief magistrate, and it is a matter of subdued comment among White House attendants and frequenters that either these worries or the cares of office have aged him out of all proportion to the period of time which has elapsed since his return from his Adirondack vacation early in the fall.

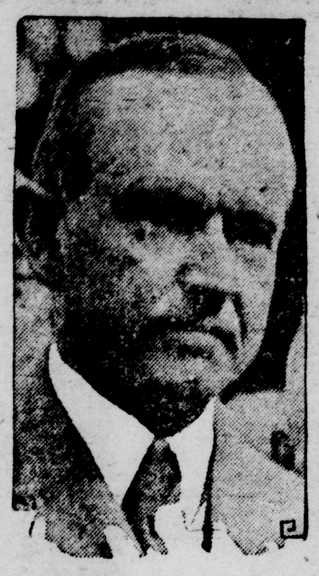

On his arrival in Washington from the mountains the president appeared in exceptionally good form. From his standpoint, however, the congressional campaign already was developing unsatisfactorily. The election, with the defeat of the administration's staunchest of all supporters—Senator Butler of Massachusetts—and its probable loss of control of the upper house in the next congress did not improve matters.

1926 (after vacation).

No Unnecessary Fretting.

President Coolidge is not an individual who frets audibly over what cannot be helped. He even managed, for publication, to interpret the result at the polls as, in a sense, a victory for himself. He undoubtedly realizes, nevertheless, that the latter half of his current term will be marked by serious difficulty for his policies, on Capitol Hill.

Aside from such official and political anxieties as may be presumed to weigh on the presidential mind, the White House tenant finds time for less and less physical exercise, what with multiplying executive and legislative problems to be met and many disputed appointments to be made.

The president, of course, is literally growing older, too, and may have lost something of the recuperative powers which were so characteristic of him earlier in his term.

Face Betrays Weariness.

At all events, he lacks much of his former alertness of manner. The peculiar ashen hue of his complexion is accentuated. His face has new and deeper lines and he wears a drawn expression, suggestive of weariness and mental strain.

That he is not unconscious of a change in himself is hinted at by his attitude toward the photographers who constantly swarm about the executive offices. From being snapshotted more frequently than any other individual in the United States, the president has learned to know exactly how to pose so as to be seen at his best. In this respect he is more particular today than ever before. He is keenly interested in the matter of lights and shadows on his face whenever a camera is directed toward him and frequently vetoes any pictures at all when more than usually tired.

Does Not Complain.

President Coolidge is not the person to complain. When his predecessor felt below par he was frank to say so. The present incumbent compresses his lips into a thin line and goes grimly through with whatever he is scheduled to go through with. But whereas hitherto his day's work seemingly seldom overtaxed him, there are frequent evidences now that it costs him an effort.

The White House post long has been known as a man-killer. For a long while President Coolidge showed no signs that he found it so, but at last those who see much of him are beginning to wonder if it finally is not threatening to "get" him.

Mrs. Coolidge, on the other hand, almost seems, day by day, to grow younger, but it is a commonplace in Washington that most American "first ladies" outlive their husbands.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Senator Daniel F. Steck of Iowa is a Democrat and Senator David W. Stewart of the same state is a Republican but they're the best of friends.

DANIEL F. STECK

True, Republicans and Democrats aren't expected to be personal enemies just because they differ politically.

Senators King and Smoot, both from Utah are, respectively, a Democrat and a Republican. Senator Edge of New Jersey is a Republican and Senator Edwards of New Jersey is a Democrat. There are several other similar mixtures in the upper house of congres and a good many varigated delegations in the lower one. Their inter-party relationships are very pleasant.

But Steck and Stewart are regular pals. They're "Dan" and "Dave" to one another. They're inseparable. Hardly another so brotherly a pair is to be found in the senate.

The explanation undoubtedly is that the two are naturally congenial spirits and that the Republican and Democratic labels no longer mean much, if anything.

Steck was a candidate in 1924 against Smith W. Brookhart, the Republican senatorial nominee. Brookhart was declared elected but Steck filed a contest. Hanford MacNider, Republican assistant secretary of war, was one of his strongest supporters. He won his seat with votes of Republicans, who preferred him, a nominal Democrat, to Brookhart, a nominal Republican.

But in 1926 Brookhart secured another Republican nomination, beating Albert B. Cummins, and in November he was elected over Claude R. Porter, Democrat.

This time Brookhart's victory was unquestioned, but he doesn't take office until the 70th congress meets and the present one is the fag end of the 69th.

In the meantime Senator Cummins died, leaving a three-month unfinished balance of his term to be filled out by appointment by Gov. Hammill.

was so far from being Brookhart's kind of a Republican that he wouldn't name Brookhart even for three months, but selected Stewart instead.

This, then, Steck and Stewart had, to begin with, in common:

Each was chosen for being, in his own way, as different as possible from Brookhart.

With this tie between them, they soon found they had others.

Notably, both are "safe and sane," as "regulars," regardless of party, define "safety and sanity." Good corn belt senators, they want what their section of the country wants, but they show a disposition to get it by moral suasion, if they can rather than by resorting to the use of a blackjack.

They're not violently belligerent. Brookhart is, the conservatives complain.

However, the Steck-Stewart senatorial friendship is not destined to be of long duration. On March 4 out goes Stewart and in comes Brookhart, immediately, if there's an extra session; next December, at the latest.

It's safe to say that Brookhart will be no Pythias to Steck's Damon.

No two senators could be more unlike in ideas, in temperament, in methods or in manner. There's the recollection of that contest rankling between them.

The Steck-Stewart relationship is something beautiful to behold. The Steck-Brookhart relationship is likely to be pointed to in future congresses as a horrible example.

Edward Menge, a freshman medical student at Ohio State university, Columbus, has been appointed page in the state senate. Miss Edith Coffee, Salem, has been named stenographer for the senate and house, while Mrs. Lotta Emmons, wife of State Representative Ralph Emmons, East Rochester, has been made the official house hostess.

This is the first time that a woman outside of Columbus has held the place as official house hostess. She will have charge of the ladies' rest room, which adjoins the chamber of house of representatives in the state capitol while the legislature is in session.

The appointments were obtained through Representative Emmons and Senator Carpenter.

IN those great days when iron men went down to the sea in wooden ships, when American clippers ruled the seven seas, and the quickest road to California was the fastest road to fortune, the FLYING CLOUD was the queen of open water.

Storming down the trades, chasing the horizon from Sandy Hook to Golden Gate, the FLYING CLOUD set record after record for that turbulent fifteen thousand miles from old New York to new San Francisco—for the fastest single voyage, for the two, three and four fastest trips.

"PAY-AS-YOU GO" POLICY IS URGED IN OHIO

State Auditor Points Way to Reduce Burdensome Charges.

DEBTS INCREASE

Cites Situation in Cities and School Districts.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—"Only by means of the 'pay-as-you-go' policy can a reduction in the burdensome charge for support of the sinking funds in local taxing units throughout Ohio be averted," declared Joseph Tracy, state auditor, here today.

"The increase of the public debt of local taxing units still continues with no appreciable improvement of the financial situation in many cities and school districts," Tracy said.

Tracy announced that the public debt in Ohio for 1926 aggregated $ 12,624,409 for counties, cities, villages, townships and school districts, compared with $879,143,684 in 1925.

"Even minor public improvements cannot be made except by resorting to bond issues," continued Tracy. "A 'pay-as-you-go' plan of financing such minor improvements has not been generally adopted.

"It is some consolation to note that the increase this year is $33,000,000 which is considerably less than that of previous years. Deficiency bonds, totaling $5,697,754.56 were issued to provide relief to county, municipal and school districts, but it seems that such relief is only temporary. Many districts have been financially embarrassed during the past two years," Track stated.

He issued the following comparative tables relative to the public debt:

| | July 1, 1925 | July 1, 1926 |
|---|---|---|

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

GORE TALKS ON ROAD BUILDING

Chief Executive Outlines Views in Address to Assessors.

Governor Howard M. Gore, who recently spoke at the annual convention of county assessors held in Charleston took occasion to discuss the state's road problem.

The chief executive touched briefly on the economies of the road situation, illustrating his points with stories intended to show it is more economical to build roads than not to build them.

Passing through one mud hole will depreciate the value of an automobile five per cent, the governor asserted and the same loss in excess of ordinary depreciation will take place on one trip if the roads traversed are not right. Carrying this point further, Mr. Gore said that there are 140,000 motor vehicles in the state. While these cars may lose considerably more than five per cent in value because of improper roads on any one trip, the governor said he would take only a five per cent depreciation per car per year in excess of ordinary depreciation, and finds that it costs the owners of the 140,000 motor cars $7,000,000 in a year's time. With good roads this depreciation would be saved.

"The question, therefore," the governor said, "is will the automobile owners put their money in a depreciation or in roads."

The outstanding indebtedness of the state for roads, the governor said, is approximately $44,000,000, with all of the $50,000,000 bond issue spent. The remaining $6,000,000 is in the hands of the sinking funding commission, having been bought over by the state. The plan, he explained, is to ask the legislature to authorize the re-issue of this money and if authority is granted, the state will have sufficient funds to go ahead with its program next year.

The governor called on the assessors to take varying conditions into consideration in making up their valuations of property, as for instance, in the case of farm products, which are subject to market conditions.

In closing, Mr. Gore reminded the assessors that all officials should be ambitious to perform their whole duty to the public.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold instantly. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WAGES OF MINERS ON 1917 SCALE

A slight increase in the demand for miners to begin work with the opening of the new year was noted by C. M. O'Neil, examiner in charge of the state-federal labor bureau at Charleston. Mr. O'Neil said that he has had several requests for miners.

As to the wage situation, the outlook seems to be that many of the mines are going back to the 1917 scale, owing to the recent decline in the coal market. This means a reduction of approximately $2, per day under the increase granted to miners early in the fall.

BROOKE COUNTY RECORD BROKEN

A checkup on Friday evening at the county clerk's office in Brooke county revealed that 3,098 marriage licenses had been issued at that office during the past year, which sets a record not only for this county but also West Virginia. The previous high mark reached in marriage license was made last year when 2,949 were issued at the local office. Over three hundred applicants for license the past year were turned away by Clerk Montgomery for the most part because of their age.

Exactly Suits Elderly Persons

There is a sound therapeutic reason why Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds is especially suited to the needs of elderly persons: because it contains no chloroform, or opiates to cause constipation (that bug-bear of advancing years) and to dry up the natural and necessary secretions. Mildly laxative, wonderfully soothing and healing to the irritated area, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound quickly stops all coughs and throat irritations, lingering "flu" coughs and disturbing night coughs. Is exactly suited to the needs of elderly people. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Because of the higher cost of living in Switzerland, many Swiss spent their vacations recently in Italy, France and Belgium.

Don't treat a cough lightly. Don't be foolish and say, "I'll get over it."

No matter what causes it: exposure, colds or irritation from dust and smoking—a cough is a signal that the throat tissues are inflamed and may quickly become breeding places for myriads of germs that lurk in the mucus. If this infection spreads, serious consequences will result.

Get rid of that cough right now, before it "settles" in the "danger zone". Take PERTUSSIN at once.

It loosens up congestion promptly, and by stimulating expectoration, helps to rid you of sticky, germ-laden phlegm that clogs the air passages.

PERTUSSIN is a simple herbal remedy—pleasant to take, free from "dope", and has been prescribed by physicians for 20 years.

If your cough has already settled in the "danger zone", you should see your Doctor.

Exactly Suits Elderly Persons

There is a sound therapeutic reason why Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds is especially suited to the needs of elderly persons: because it contains no chloroform, or opiates to cause constipation (that bug-bear of advancing years) and to dry up the natural and necessary secretions. Mildly laxative, wonderfully soothing and healing to the irritated area, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound quickly stops all coughs and throat irritations, lingering "flu" coughs and disturbing night coughs. Is exactly suited to the needs of elderly people. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Because of the higher cost of living in Switzerland, many Swiss spent their vacations recently in Italy, France and Belgium.

HIGHS LOSE TO ALUMNI--ELKS BREAK SALEM'S WINNING STREAK

BROWNS "THREW" SERIES TO TIGERS IN 1923, DECLARES COBB

MULLINS GIVEN FIRST SETBACK IN COURT LOOP

Capacity Crowd Sees Antlers Stop League Leaders.

SALEM'S dreams of riding a tidal wave of victory to supremacy in the Columbiana Coutny Amateur Basketball league were puctured here Saturday night when the East Liverpool Elks, turning in their finest performance of the season, handed the hitherto undefeated Mullins Body five a 44 to 21 setback, and although the Mullins stars are still on top of the heap today, their position is not so steady.

The contest attracted the record crowd of the campaign here to date, all available room being taken at the high school gymnasium. Coach Bill Powell's lads, facing the biggest job they have had to handle yet, went at their task in unostentatious, but workmanlike style, the great defense combination of Captain Anderson and "Chuck" McConville breaking up play after play; Center Wilde absolutely outplaying, outscoring and outwitting Center Matticks, the star of the Salem combine, throughout the game; Clark, Wilson and Pusey, the forwards, collecting 12 field goals among themselves and the team, in general, exhibiting a co-operation and a brand of passing that was certain of results from the very start.

The contest saw the advent of Tom Pusey, former high school star, who is ineligible for further participation in school athletics. The diminutive forward broke into the independent ranks with his customary dash and fitted in as though he had been playing all his life with this particular outfit.

The Elks went to the lead at the very outset and never were headed. They ran up a 10 to 2 count on Salem in the first quarter with Clark and Wilde reaching the basket for the Elks. In the second period the visitors crept up a little and shortly before the half only six points separated the two teams. But the Elks resumed their scoring drive with a few minutes to go and the gap widened to 21-11 at the half.

The visitors used a number of substitutes in the final quarter with the game gone and Elks scorers took advantage of the opportunity to fatten their "batting" averages.

Matticks, center, who scored 25 points against Columbiana in a recent contest, went home with three field goals and a foul for his night's work. Wilde outjumped him consistently and generally played basketball that made the "old-timers" sit up and look. Hawkins and Sidinger were the principal performers for the Mullins quint.

The league standing remains unchanged as a result of the two games at the week end. Damascus defeated Lisbon, 59 to 23, Friday night, and sticks to second place, a half-game behind Salem now, with the Elks a half game behind Damascus.

The Salem five, apparently, has not been given the brand of refereeing they received here Saturday night and objected frequently. How they could object to Bill Watkins, whose ability is unquestioned all over the Tri-State district is something to wonder at. Apparently, no other league referee has called them as they saw them, like Bill does, in games in which the Salem team has figured. If all the referees were like Watkins, the officiating end of the circuit would be a guaranteed success.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you swing your clubs in practice you often note how snappily the clubhead zips past where the ball ordinarily would be. Then you wonder why you never can get such a swing to work when you are actually hitting the ball. The answer to that puzzler is easy, and in the answer you will find one of the very finest rules for your whole golf career. The answer is that when you make those practice swings you are using your natural, easy swing. That is the swing to use when you are hitting the ball—your natural, easy swing. It is your failure to take things easily when you are hitting at the ball, as you do when practicing, that causes all the trouble. The secret to be discerned here is that all golf shots should be executed without that conscious effort to force the club. Watch that point.

Collins Is Ready To Face Risberg On Scandal Count

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Eddie Collins, third of baseball's trinity to be involved in tales of scandal that trace back to the game's dark ages before 1919, and only one of many named by Swede Risberg as a participant in an alleged "fixing" of the 1917 American league pennant race, will go to Chicago to confront Risberg if Judge Landis wants him to, he said today, but he really considers Risberg's story "too silly" to be required to be answered in person.

Risberg is scheduled to come back before Judge Landis on Wednesday to repeat his charges in the presence of the accused, who, in addition to Collins, include Ray Schalk and Donie Bush, newly appointed managers at Chicago and Pittsburgh, respectively; George Dauss, veteran Detroit pitcher, and Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox in 1917, but now on American league umpire. The date of the hearing was set by Landis in the hope that, with complainant and defendents present, there would be no suspended verdicts nor loose ends such as was the case in the recent scandal involving Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

ROWLAND, SCHALK REACH CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Clarence Rowland, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Ray Schalk, present manager, were in Chicago today, the first to arrive in answer to telegrams sent out by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, requesting all members of the White Sox and Detroit teams of 1917 to meet in the commissioner's office here on Wednesday to answer "crooked baseball" charges made by Charles "Swede" Risberg.

GRADUATE FIVE LANDS IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Miss Imbrie is Star as Girls Defeat Alumni.

HIGH school basketball teams turned in a 50-50 performance in games Friday night with Alumni opponents, the girls nosing out 24- to 23 over the graduate lassies and the boys taking the short end of a 39 to 37 count before their Ex-High foes.

The chief engagement was a real game throughout, both fives maintaining a fast pace. Lorah's lads played up to snuff against their older opponents and the latter came through only in the last two minutes.

The graduates took the lead at the start, McConville caging the first basket on a long shot. Smith tossed in a point from the foul line. High tied the score from the foul line with Hamilton and Wildblood tossing in one-pointers. The Alumni forged ahead again when Smith and DeBolt caged field goals, but were overehauled on two-point tosses by Hamilton and Larkins. Captain Hamilton dropped in two from the free zone. DeBolt evened it up for the Alumni with a pretty side shot, the first period ending with the count 9-9.

The Ex-High got under way in full steam at the start of the second quarter, scoring four straight double deckers. Elmer English replaced McKeever in the high school lineup, going to a guard post, and for the rest of the quarter whirlwind basketball was the order. Lorah's five crept up gradually until they held a 21-20 lead at the half.

DeBot's shot put the Alumni ahead at the start of the third period. The Ex-Highs maintained their small advantage through the period which ended at 28 to 25. During the quarter Captain Hamilton was injured, being forced to leave the game. McKeever went back into the fray.

Wilblood and English came through with a series of three field goals, giving High a three-point lead.

Firth Smith's field goal cut it down two points, but Elmer English made the count 33 to 30. Bob Pusey dropped one in from mid-floor. McConville counted and the game was getting more fiery as the end neared. McKeever sent school rooters into an uproar when he sank a field goal to put High in the lead. Smith tied it up with a pretty one from mid-floor. A sensational long shot by Wildblood again gave the Highs the lead with three minutes to go. The Alumni then began to shoot from long range. Smith connected to tie the count and DeBolt's try from the middle of the court was good for two points, the winning points, as the whistle blew.

To name one or two particular stars would be difficult, for all who played contributed stellar performances.

Imbrie's nine double deckers and two fouls clinched the girls' contest. The Alumni lassies showed a better brand of passwork but lost in face of Miss Imbrie's marksmanship.

Movin' On

ED GRABOWSKI

Jack Grabowski, one of the long line of catchers destined at some time or other to succeed Ray Schalk as White Sox backstop, may finally win fame for himself as a backstop, but it won't be as a member of Comiskey's catchers. For the young backstop is now a member of the New York Yankees, via the trade route.

Huggins obtained Grabowski in the deal which sent Aaron Ward to the Sox recently.

Grabowski came up to the White Sox two or three years ago and joined the group of 'second Schalks,' which today has included Graham, Yaya Yaryan, Long, McCurdy, Crouse, and others.

He broke into 48 games last year and hit .262.

Denials Pour In On Landis After 'Swede's' Story

"Liar" is Common Answer to Risberg's Pool Charges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Denials from some of baseball stardom's mightiest poured into Chicago today as an aftermath of charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg to Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, that the Chicago White Sox gave money to the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" a series of four games in 1917.

Eddie Collins, "Red" Faber, Donie Bush, Clarence Rowland, Ray Schalk, Hughie Jennings and many others termed Risberg either "a liar," or denied any knowledge of the so-called "pool" collected by the Sox and given to the Tigers.

Schalk and several others admitted there was a "pool" but claimed the money was given to the Tigers for their splendid work against the Boston team, helping the Sox to triumph. Such was then the "custom of the country," according to Schalk.

Oscar (Happy) Felsch, barred from baseball with Risberg in the 1919 world's series scandal, was the only player who did not attack his former teammate. Risberg hinted that if given the opportunity he might tell more than has yet found the ear of Judge Landis. Felsch said:

"Is that all 'Swede' said? I thought he would tell more than that."

Gives Club Chance To Beat Cleveland; Denies Conspiracy

Fuel is Added to Fires of "Scandal" as Ousted Player Tells How Team Won Second Place Money; Navin Brands $1,100 Pool Story, for Laying Down to White Sox as Falsehood.

DETROIT, Jan. 3.—At least one and possibly all of a three-game series were "thrown" to the Detroit Tigers late in 1923 by the St. Louis Browns, but there was no conspiracy, Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times today quotes Ty Cobb as saying.

The St. Louis Browns were playing in Detroit. It was late in the season and the Tigers were fighting Cleveland for second place.

At 1 o'clock, or two hours before the game, some St. Louis players approached Cobb, manager of the Tigers, according to Walker. They said: "You are going to win today's game. We will not try to take it. Those damned ——(meaning the Indians) have insulted us all season and we hope you beat them out. Today's game is yours," Walker quotes Cobb as saying.

Cobb revealed this just before he left Detroit for Augusta, Walker says.

"I was in uniform at the time, and went to the office of Navin (Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club) and told him the whole thing," Cobb said according to Walker. "There was still more than an hour in which to get down bets on a sure thing. I do not know whether any bets were made or not. I didn't make any bets, but we won the game."

The Tigers not only won that game but they swept the series from the Browns and won second place over Cleveland by a few points. Navin denied today that the Tigers were given approximately $1,000 for "laying down" to the White Sox. The money was a pool given to the Tigers for defeating the Boston Red Sox in a crucial series, he said, and not a bribe to have them throw games.

Navin indicated that he would not go to Chicago to appear before Judge Landis to reply to Risberg's charges.

"I have not been asked to go to Chicago. What would I want to go there for?" he said.

It is understood the various Tiger players involved in Risberg's charges will heed the call of baseball's czar and appear before him. All members of the club who could be reached said Risberg's charges were false and only the mouthings of a man angered because he was barred from baseball.

Harry Heilman, Bobbie Veach and Bernie Boland all say they never heard of such a proposal.

The games in question were played on October 5th, 6th and 7th. Detroit won three straight by the scores of 9 to 1, 12 to 3, and 7 to 6.

SPEAKER, COBB MAY BE GIVEN NEW HEARINGS

Risberg's Story Acts as Boomerang for Pair.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, that peerless diamond pair ousted from baseball by "Dutch" Leonard's now famous tattle-tale, may get another chance.

Indications today were that Cobb and Speaker at least may be given a new hearing in an attempt to clear their names.

The sensational story related by Charles "Swede" Risberg, one of the original "Black Sox," to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, of a "purchase" by the Chicago White Sox of a series of four games with the Detroit Tigers in 1917, has acted as a boomerang in the troubled waters of the former Detroit and Cleveland managers.

Will Meet Accuser.

Eddie Collins, now of Philadelphia Athletics, Donnie Bush, new Pittsburgh manager, Ray Schalk, new White Sox manager, and others accused in the "fixing" story of Risberg, are to meet their accuser before Judge Landis on Wednesday and it is known that strong pressure is being brought by friends of Cobb and Speaker to give them the same opportunity to meet Leonard in a final showdown.

Judge Landis, it was reported, has been appealed to in an effort to have him bring Leonard here to give Ty and Tris a chance to fight for vindication, both having claimed if they were given a chance to meet Leonard face to face they would make him "eat his words."

The baseball czar refused to comment today on the reported rehearing for the two famous ex-managers but at the same time he would not say the careers of Speaker and Cobb were entirely ended.

Landis Questioned.

"Will the charges of Risberg make any difference in the cases of Cobb and Speaker?" Judge Landis was asked.

His answer was guarded. He said: "I would not care to say anything about that at this time."

"Are you going to give Cobb and Speaker another chance to clear their names," the judge was then asked.

"I can't say right now," the commissioner replied.

"Are the cases of Cobb and Speak-

HIGHS LOSE TO ALUMNI--ELKS BREAK SALEM'S WINNING STREAK

Capacity Crowd Sees Antlers Stop League Leaders.

SALEM'S dreams of riding a tidal wave of victory to supremacy in the Columbiana Coutny Amateur Baskelball league were puctured here Saturday night when the East Liverpool Elks, turning in their finest performance of the season, handed the hitherto undefeated Mullins Body five a 44 to 21 setback, and although the Mullins stars are still on top of the heap today, their position is not so steady.

The contest attracted the record crowd of the campaign here to date, all available room being taken at the high school gymnasium. Coach Bill Powell's lads, facing the biggest job they have had to handle yet, went at their task in unostentatious, but workmanlike style, the great defense combination of Captain Anderson and "Chuck" McConville breaking up play after play; Center Wilde absolutely outplaying, outscoring and outwitting Center Matticks, the star of the Salem combine, throughout the game; Clark, Wilson and Pusey, the forwards, collecting 12 field goals among themselves and the team, in general, exhibiting a co-operation and a brand of passing that was certain of results from the very start.

The contest saw the advent of Tom Pusey, former high school star, who is ineligible for further participation in school athletics. The diminutive forward broke into the independent ranks with his customary dash and fitted in as though he had been playing all his life with this particular outfit.

The Elks went to the lead at the very outset and never were headed. They ran up a 10 to 2 count on Salem in the first quarter with Clark and Wilde reaching the basket for the Elks. In the second period the visitors crept up a little and shortly before the half only six points separated the two teams. But the Elks resumed their scoring drive with a few minutes to go and the gap widened to 21-11 at the half.

The visitors used a number of substitutes in the final quarter with the game gone and Elks scorers took advantage of the opportunity to fatten their "batting" averages.

Matticks, center, who scored 25 points against Columbiana in a recent contest, went home with three field goals and a foul for his night's work. Wilde outjumped him consistently and generally played basketball that made the "old-timers" sit up and look. Hawkins and Sidinger were the principal performers for the Mullins quint.

The league standing remains unchanged as a result of the two games at the week end. Damascus defeated Lisbon, 59 to 23, Friday night, and sticks to second place, a half-game behind Salem now, with the Elks a half game behind Damascus.

The Salem five, apparently, has not been given the brand of refereeing they received here Saturday night and objected frequently. How they could object to Bill Watkins, whose ability is unquestioned all over the Tri-State district is something to wonder at. Apparently, no other league referee has called them as they saw them, like Bill does, in games in which the Salem team has figured. If all the referees were like Watkins, the officiating end of the circuit would be a guaranteed success.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you swing your clubs in practice you often note how snappily the clubhead zips past where the ball ordinarily would be. Then you wonder why you never can get such a swing to work when you are actually hitting the ball. The answer to that puzzler is easy, and in the answer you will find one of the very finest rules for your whole golf career. The answer is that when you make those practice swings you are using your natural, easy swing. That is the swing to use when you are hitting the ball—your natural, easy swing. It is your failure to take things easily when you are hitting at the ball, as you do when practicing, that causes all the trouble. The secret to be discerned here is that all golf shots should be executed without that conscious effort to force the club. Watch that point.

Collins Is Ready To Face Risberg On Scandal Count

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Eddie Collins, third of baseball's trinity to be involved in tales of scandal that trace back to the game's dark ages before 1919, and only one of many named by Swede Risberg as a participant in an alleged "fixing" of the 1917 American league pennant race, will go to Chicago to confront Risberg if Judge Landis wants him to, he said today, but he really considers Risberg's story "too silly" to be required to be answered in person.

Risberg is scheduled to come back before Judge Landis on Wednesday to repeat his charges in the presence of the accused, who, in addition to Collins, include Ray Schalk and Donie Bush, newly appointed managers at Chicago and Pittsburgh, respectively; George Dauss, veteran Detroit pitcher, and Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox in 1917, but now on American league umpire. The date of the hearing was set by Landis in the hope that, with complainant and defendents present, there would be no suspended verdicts nor loose ends such as was the case in the recent scandal involving Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

ROWLAND, SCHALK REACH CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Clarence Rowland, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Ray Schalk, present manager, were in Chicago today, the first to arrive in answer to telegrams sent out by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, requesting all members of the White Sox and Detroit teams of 1917 to meet in the commissioner's office here on Wednesday to answer "crooked baseball" charges made by Charles "Swede" Risberg.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAMS TO CLASH

Lutherans will clash with the United Presbyterians tonight at 8 o'clock on the M. E. floor in the Sunday school basketball circuit. N. F. Lorah will referee.

GRADUATE FIVE LANDS IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Miss Imbrie is Star as Girls Defeat Alumni.

HIGH school basketball teams turned in a 50-50 performance in games Friday night with Alumni opponents, the girls nosing out 24- to 23 over the graduate lassies and the boys taking the short end of a 39 to 37 count before their Ex-High foes.

The chief engagement was a real game throughout, both fives maintaining a fast pace. Lorah's lads played up to snuff against their older opponents and the latter came through only in the last two minutes.

The graduates took the lead at the start, McConville caging the first basket on a long shot. Smith tossed in a point from the foul line. High tied the score from the foul line with Hamilton and Wildblood tossing in onepointers. The Alumni forged ahead again when Smith and DeBolt caged field goals, but were overehauled on two-point tosses by Hamilton and Larkins. Captain Hamilton dropped in two from the free zone. DeBolt evened it up for the Alumni with a pretty side shot, the first period ending with the count 9-9.

The Ex-High got under way in full steam at the start of the second quarter, scoring four straight double deckers. Elmer English replaced McKeever in the high school lineup, going to a guard post, and for the rest of the quarter whirlwind basketball was the order. Lorah's five crept up gradually until they held a 21-20 lead at the half.

DeBot's shot put the Alumni ahead at the start of the third period. The Ex-Highs maintained their small advantage through the period which ended at 28 to 25. During the quarter Captain Hamilton was injured, being forced to leave the game. McKeever went back into the fray.

Wilblood and English came through with a series of three field goals, giving High a three-point lead.

Firth Smith's field goal cut it down two points, but Elmer English made the count 33 to 30. Bob Pusey dropped one in from mid-floor. McConville counted and the game was getting more fiery as the end neared. McKeever sent school rooters into an uproar when he sank a field goal to put High in the lead. Smith tied it up with a pretty one from mid-floor. A sensational long shot by Wildblood again gave the Highs the lead with three minutes to go. The Alumni then began to shoot from long range. Smith connected to tie the count and DeBolt's try from the middle of the court was good for two points, the winning points, as the whistle blew.

To name one or two particular stars would be difficult, for all who played contributed stellar performances.

Imbrie's nine double deckers and two fouls clinched the girls' contest. The Almni lassies showed a better brand of passwork but lost in face of Miss Imbrie's marksmanship.

Movin' On

ED GRABOWSKI

Jack Grabowski, one of the long line of catchers destined at some time or other to succeed Ray Schalk as White Sox backstop, may finally win fame for hilmself as a backstop, but it won't be as a member of Comiskey's catchers. For the young backstop is now a member of the New York Yankees, via the trade route.

Huggins obtained Grabowski in the deal which sent Aaron Ward to the Sox recently.

Grabowski came up to the White Sox two or three years ago and joined the group of 'second Schalks,' which today has included Graham, Yaya Yaryan, Long, McCurdy, Crouse, and others.

He broke into 48 games last year and hit .262.

"Liar" is Common Answer to Risberg's Pool Charges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Denials from some of baseball stardom's mightiest poured into Chicago today as an aftermath of charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg to Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, that the Chicago White Sox gave money to the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" a series of four games in 1917.

Eddie Collins, "Red" Faber, Donie Bush, Clarence Rowland, Ray Schalk, Hughie Jennings and many others termed Risberg either "a liar," or denied any knowledge of the so-called "pool" collected by the Sox and given to the Tigers.

Schalk and several others admitted there was a "pool" but claimed the money was given to the Tigers for their splendid work against the Boston team, helping the Sox to triumph. Such was then the "custom of the country," according to Schalk.

Oscar (Happy) Felsch, barred from baseball with Risberg in the 1919 world's series scandal, was the only player who did not attack his former teammate. Risberg hinted that if given the opportunity he might tell more than has yet found the ear of Judge Landis. Felsch said:

"Is that all 'Swede' said? I thought he would tell more than that."

Fuel is Added to Fires of "Scandal" as Ousted Player Tells How Team Won Second Place Money; Navin Brands $1,100 Pool Story, for Laying Down to White Sox as Falsehood.

DETROIT, Jan. 3.—At least one and possibly all of a three-game series were "thrown" to the Detroit Tigers late in 1923 by the St. Louis Browns, but there was no conspiracy, Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times today quotes Ty Cobb as saying.

The St. Louis Browns were playing in Detroit. It was late in the season and the Tigers were fighting Cleveland for second place.

At 1 o'clock, or two hours before the game, some St. Louis players approached Cobb, manager of the Tigers, according to Walker. They said: "You are going to win today's game. We will not try to take it. Those damned ——(meaning the Indians) have insulted us all season and we hope you beat them out. Today's game is yours," Walker quotes Cobb as saying.

Cobb revealed this just before he left Detroit for Augusta, Walker says.

"I was in uniform at the time, and went to the office of Navin (Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club) and told him the whole thing," Cobb said according to Walker. "There was still more than an hour in which to get down bets on a sure thing. I do not know whether any bets were made or not. I didn't make any bets, but we won the game."

The Tigers not only won that game but they swept the series from the Browns and won second place over Cleveland by a few points. Navin denied today that the Tigers were given approximately $1,000 for "laying down" to the White Sox. The money was a pool given to the Tigers for defeating the Boston Red Sox in a crucial series, he said, and not a bribe to have them throw games.

Navin indicated that he would not go to Chicago to appear before Judge Landis to reply to Risberg's charges.

"I have not been asked to go to Chicago. What would I want to go there for?" he said.

It is understood the various Tiger players involved in Risberg's charges will heed the call of baseball's czar and appear before him. All members of the club who could be reached said Risberg's charges were false and only the mouthings of a man angered because he was barred from baseball.

Harry Heilman, Bobbie Veach and Bernie Boland all say they never heard of such a proposal.

The games in question were played on October 5th, 6th and 7th. Detroit won three straight by the scores of 9 to 1, 12 to 3, and 7 to 6.

SPEAKER, COBB MAY BE GIVEN NEW HEARINGS

Risberg's Story Acts as Boomerang for Pair.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Tris Speak and Ty Cobb, that peerless diamond pair ousted from baseball by "Dutch" Leonard's now famous tattle-tale, may get another chance.

Indications today were that Cobb and Speaker at least may be given a new hearing in an attempt to clear their names.

The sensational story related by Charles "Swede" Risberg, one of the original "Black Sox," to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, of a "purchase" by the Chicago White Sox of a series of four games with the Detroit Tigers in 1917, has acted as a boomerang in the troubled waters of the former Detroit and Cleveland managers.

Will Meet Accuser.

Eddie Collins, now of Philadelphia Athletics, Donnie Bush, new Pittsburgh manager, Ray Schalk, new White Sox manager, and others accused in the "fixing" story of Risberg, are to meet their accuser before Judge Landis on Wednesday and it is known that strong pressure is being brought by friends of Cobb and Speaker to give them the same opportunity to meet Leonard in a final showdown.

Judge Landis, it was reported, has been appealed to in an effort to have him bring Leonard here to give Ty and Tris a chance to fight for vindication, both having claimed if they were given a chance to meet Leonard face to face they would make him "eat his words."

The baseball czar refused to comment today on the reported rehearing for the two famous ex-managers but at the same time he would not say the careers of Speaker and Cobb were entirely ended.

Landis Questioned.

"Will the charges of Risberg make any difference in the cases of Cobb and Speaker?" Judge Landis was asked.

His answer was guarded. He said: "I would not care to say anything about that at this time."

"Are you going to give Cobb and Speaker another chance to clear their names," the judge was then asked.

"I can't say right now," the commissioner replied.

"Are the cases of Cobb and Speaker

Speaker-Cobb

or entirely closed as far as you are concerned, Judge Landis?" was another question asked the commissioner. He replied:

"Please don't ask me such questions now. I haven't anything to say now."

Judge Landis was loath to comment on the cases of Bush, Collins, Schalk, "Red" Faber and others accused by Risberg.

"Are you going to let Collins, Bush and Schalk play ball this season or are they to be barred?" the judge was asked.

Can Say Nothing.

He answered:

"I can't say now. The investigation of Risberg's charges is just starting. Nothing will be done until a thorough investigation is made."

"Will Collins and Schalk be placed under a temporary ban," Landis was questioned."

"Don't ask me such questions, please. That will all be settled after the investigation."

Cobb and Speaker are not involved in the story of Risberg, who told Judge Landis he was positive that Cobb, then with Detroit, did not receive any of the "collection" claimed to have been given some Detroit players by the Chicago Sox for "throwing" games.

Speaker-Cobb

er entirely closed as far as you are concerned, Judge Landis?" was another question asked the commissioner. He replied:

"Please don't ask me such questions now. I haven't anything to say now."

Judge Landis was loath to comment on the cases of Bush, Collins, Schalk, "Red" Faber and others accused by Risberg.

"Are you going to let Collins, Bush and Schalk play ball this season or are they to be barred?" the judge was asked.

Can Say Nothing.

He answered:

"I can't say now. The investigation of Risberg's charges is just starting. Nothing will be done until a thorough investigation is made."

"Will Collins and Schalk be placed under a temporary ban," Landis was questioned."

"Don't ask me such questions, please. That will all be settled after the investigation."

Cobb and Speaker are not involved in the story of Risberg, who told Judge Landis he was positive that Cobb, then with Detroit, did not receive any of the "collection" claimed to have been given some Detroit players by the Chicago Sox for "throwing" games.

Tells Why He Can Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J. Trumbull of Jersey City, N. J., whose letter goes on to say. "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

INGRAM FILM AT AMERICAN

"The Magician" Opens Four-day Engagement Here.

"The Magician," which will have its first showing at the American theatre today, beginning a four-day run, is the first Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn since his widely discussed and highly successful screen version of Blasco Ibanez', "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea.)

This new picture from the brilliant young director deals with a subject entirely different from anything he has previously done and he has handled it in the fine manner which has marked all his previous triumphs. It is his most ambitious achievement.

The story of "The Magician" is that of a girl caught between the forces of a Magician, whom she is unable to resist, and the love for a young surgeon who has saved her from being a helpless cripple by performing a delicate operation on her spine, which startled the surgical world.

Ingram has taken the Somerset Maugham story and with his usual brilliance in the handling of such subject, has developed a powerfully romantic drama.

Alice Terry enacts the part of Margaret Dauncey, the young sculptress, and gives one of the finest peformances she has ever registered on the screen.

Paul Wegener has the title role and this noted German character appears to even a better advantage than he did in "The Golem," which created a sensation when released in the United States several years ago.

Ivan Petrovich, a young Serbian actor, plays opposite Miss Terry and Firmin Gemir, the famous French actor and stage director, enacts a most important character part.

INGRAM FILM AT AMERICAN

"The Magician" Opens Four-day Engagement Here.

"The Magician," which will have its first showing at the American theatre today, beginning a four-day run, is the first Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn since his widely discussed and highly successful screen version of Blasco Ibanez', "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea.)

This new picture from the brilliant young director deals with a subject entirely different from anything he has previously done and he has handled it in the fine manner which has marked all his previous triumphs. It is his most ambitious achievement.

The story of "The Magician" is that of a girl caught between the forces of a Magician, whom she is unable to resist, and the love for a young surgeon who has saved her from being a helpless cripple by performing a delicate operation on her spine, which startled the surgical world.

Ingram has taken the Somerset Maugham story and with his usual brilliance in the handling of such subject, has developed a powerfully romantic drama.

Alice Terry enacts the part of Margaret Dauncey, the young sculptress, and gives one of the finest peformances she has ever registered on the screen.

Paul Wegener has the title role and this noted German character appears to even a better advantage than he did in "The Golem," which created a sensation when released in the United States several years ago.

Ivan Petrovich, a young Serbian actor, plays opposite Miss Terry and Firmin Gemir, the famous French actor and stage director, enacts a most important character part.

Pink Velvet Puppies.

The Mikado Laughs.

Cruisers and Airplanes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

FASHIONABLE ladies in Paris have for their latest toy pink velvet puppies, very fat, with bright red tongues sticking out of their mouths.

Rich American girls acquire similar toys in the way of foreign husbands. Eventually the foreign husband, like the pink velvet puppy, goes into the ash can.

THE Japanese emperor, dead and embalmed, will lie in state for 50 days.

His son, Hirohito, 25 years old, takes the mikado's throne, not dressed in the old strange clothes, but in the fighting uniform of western soldiers.

If that young man is ambitious, it would interest him to look across the Pacific to the harbor of Los Angeles, the southwestern door to California and the United States.

There he would see an array of battleships costing 50 millions apiece and more, the Colorado, Maryland, West Virginia, Tennessee, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Nevada, Arizona.

VERY impressive and dramatic are those battleships and the young mikado would laugh heartily if he could see them.

He knows, what our foolish government does not know, that a battleship today is no more valuable in war than the fierce masks that the mikado's warriors once put over their faces to frighten enemies.

Every one of these battleships needs protection from airplanes, as a hen needs protection from hawks.

The Mikado has the airplanes, we haven't.

He could send across the Pacific, on his plane carrying shins enough flying machines and bombs to sink every one of those foolish battleships in a forenoon.

And if there were talk of war tomorrow, next day would find our brilliant mahogany desk warriors camouflaging the fighting ships, looking for a safe place to hide them.

In the big war Britain and Germany kept their batteships hidden away in harbors, from start to finish, except for one little fight when some ships went out, shot at each other turned tail and went home as fast as they could. Had the airplane been perfected then, they would never have got home.

Our government knows all that. But facts mean less at Washington than the lobbying of ship builders and manufacturers of armor plate.

What are Your Children Reading?

There is no more important problem for the parents of growing children than the supervision of their reading.

But books for children are difficult to choose. Child standards must be remembered and it is not easy for a grown person to get a child's point of view.

The little ones should be given only books by the great child-loving and child-understanding authors which hold true to the standards which govern good literature and good art.

There are many books that come under the above classification. The best of them are listed in "One Thousand Useful Books" the booklet which this Bureau has for distribution. Included are books for children under eight, books for boys and girls from eight to twelve, and books for other children.

Enclose four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

HOUSE SPEAKER GRAY VOICES HIS MANDATE AS LEGISLATURE CONVENES

War Vets Honor Don Lanning at Ceramic Tonight

Members of Private Eddy post, No. 66, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and their auxiliary will honor Don Lanning, World war veteran, and his wife when Lanning's musical comedy company presents "Sue Dear" at the Ceramic theatre tonight, opening a week's engagement.

The war veterans have reserved the lower boxes, and will present flowers to Mr. and Mrs. Lanning.

Senator Chester C. Bolton, Cleveland, Republican, is Selected President Pro Tem.

CADIZ MAN IS HOUSE CHIEF

Bateman and Maynard Elected Clerk of Upper and Lower Houses, Respectively.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—The mandate that "retrenchment is going to be the policy in Ohio," was voiced today by Speaker O. C. Gray, Cadiz, Republican, at the initial session of the general assembly of Ohio.

Organization routine marked the opening of both legislative branches here this morning.

Officers of Assembly.

Senator Chester C. Bolton, Cleveland, Republican, was selected president pro tem and majority floor leader in the upper legislative branch Speaker Gray was chosen unanimously as the presiding officer of the house.

Thomas Bateman, Pike county, and Capt. John P. Maynard, Lima, Republicans, were elected clerk of the senate and house, respectively. Col. Harry D. Knox, Marietta, was chosen sergeant-at-arms of the senate, and Dr. Alfred Robinson, Ironton, selected to fill a similar position in the house.

Urges Governmental Economy.

Addressing the house immediately after his induction into office as speaker, Representative Gray urged governmental economy, enactment of remedial legislation, and as brief a legislative session as is consistent with efficient service.

"There has been a great deal of public comment about the fact that there are already too many laws upon the statute books," said Speaker Gray. "There are inconsistencies in the General Code of Ohio which serve no purpose and which are an obstacle to the proper administration of government. It should be a part of the work of this session to remove these inconsistencies by remedial legislation that will be plain, understandable and workable.

"I have been informed by an unofficial statement of the auditor of state that there will be a deficit at the end of this biennium," continued Speaker Gray. "This must, necessarily, have an important bearing on our appropriation measures.

CONGRESS BACK ON JOB FOR SHORT SESSION

Political Future of Senator-designate Smith Issue.

LEADERS WORRIED

Fight Against Illinois Man May Begin Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—With the political future of Senator-designate Frank L. Smith (R) of Illinois, arousing more interest than its own legislative program, congress reconvened today for the remaining eight working weeks of its life.

The ambition of Smith to take a seat in the senate as the appointed successor of the late Senator William B. McKinley threatened the returning congress with the possibility of a special session after March 4 and gave administration leaders their greatest worry. As Smith will face a thoroughly hostile senate, ready and even eager to return him to private life, administration leaders said their efforts would be directed toward forcing an early decision on the Illinois appointee.

Rumors were current here that Smith would come to Washington Wednesday with his credentials from Governor Len Small, of Illinois. If he does, the fight to close the doors of the senate to him will begin the moment he attempts to present his credentials. All pools have indicated a clear majority committed against admitting Smith while numerous senators, including some administration leaders, predicted that Smith's opponents can easily muster a two-thirds vote.

Naval Program Outlined.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. — The administration's naval program was laid before congress today, thus paving the way for the bitter fight that is to be waged over strengthening America's sea power.

The program was brought out in the naval supply bill, carrying $316,469,530 for the next fiscal year, a reduction of $5,500,000 and with no money provided for cruiser construction to bring the United States navy up to the 5-5-3 parity with Great Britain and Japan. It was laid before the house by the administration-controlled appropriations committee. The naval committee is on the other side of the controversy, and will fight for new cruiser construction.

"With respect to new vessels, the committee is ready to proceed in providing the requisite funds whenever the president shall so recommend," said the committee's report.

No arrests were made, the sheriff's visit having been threatened as soon as he took office.

EARTH TREMORS ROCK TOWN IN CALIFORNIA

Mexicali, on Border, Also Shaken by Quakes.

WALLS CRUMBLE

Shocks on Saturday Caused $1,000,000 Damage.

CALEXICO, Cal., Jan. 3.—Two new severe earthquake shocks rocked Calexico and Mexicali between 5 and 6 a. m. today, shaking down scores of already battered walls.

Tremblors yesterday started a fire in Mexicali in which two buildings were destroyed, causing a loss of several thousand dollars. Other damage, however, was slight. A number of loosened bricks were knocked into the streets but nobody was injured.

Damage to the cities of Mexicali and Calexico by the shocks of Saturday is estimated to be in the vicinity of $1,000,000.

Black Butte, a dormant volcano 40 miles south of the border in Mexico, is reported to be active today. No alarm is felt, however, as the country surrounding it is uninhabited for a radium of many miles.

Boy Fractures His Right Knee Cap in Coasting Accident

Thomas Porter, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, St. Clair avenue grocers, sustained a fracture of his right knee cap in a coasting accident at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Porter and Dana Howell, coasting down St. Clair avenue, in order to avoid striking two girl pedestrians, ran into a signboard, north of the Porter grocery.

Porter was removed to the City hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. He was attended by Drs. W. H. and C. H. Bailey.

GAIN OF 5,352 SINCE CENSUS SEVEN YEARS AGO REPORTED

Survey Here Shows 13,206 Males and 13,557 Females.

Increase in School Enrollment and Water Consumers.

The population of East Liverpool at the opening of 1927, seven years after the last decennial census, is 26,763, compared with 25,693 at the opening of 1926, and 21,411 in 1920, an increase of 25 per cent, according to a survey just completed for The Review-Tribune by The Newspaper Feature Bureau. The survey, with definitely ascertained figures of increase, is not to be classed with estimates derived only from the gain of the 1910-1920 decade.

Characteristics of the East Liverpool population are :

| | 1920 Census | 1927 Survey |
|---|---|---|
| Population ..... | 21,411 | 26,763 |
| Males ..... | 10,565 | 13,206 |
| Females ..... | 10,846 | 13,557 |
| Persons over 21 .. | 12,999 | 16,249 |
| Males ..... | 6,400 | 8,000 |
| Females ..... | 6,599 | 8,249 |
| Dwellings ..... | 4,889 | 5,986 |
| Families ..... | 5,315 | 6,641 |

The survey is based on statistics from local sources giving comparative figures for the close of 1919 and the close of 1926:

Excess of births over deaths of 1,715 since 1920.

No annexation of territory since the census of 1920, although additional territory will be taken in early in February.

Report of Superintendent of Schools C. S. McVay of public schools enrollment of 4,397 at the close of 1919; 5,200 at the close of 1925, and 5,401 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,004, or 22.9 per cent.

School age enumeration of 4,500 at the close of 1919; 5,500 at the close of 1925 and 5,800 at the close of 1926, an increase of 1,300 or 28.5 per cent.

Report from the Superintendent of the East Liverpool Water Works of 4,500 active domestic water services in the city at the close of 1919; 4,975 at the close of 1925, and 5,200 at the close of 1926, an increase of 700, or 15.5 per cent.

The sharp increase during the past year both in schools enrollment and enumeration and in the number of domestic water services is indicative of the considerable population increase shown in the survey as compared with the figures for the opening of 1926.

Retail Merchants Meet Tomorrow to Discuss Budget

A five-gallon receptacle of liquor was alleged to have been found in a shed at the rear of the house. ## EFFORTS TO SOLVE FINANCIAL TROUBLES OF STATE GOVERNMENT WILL FEATURE LEGISLATURE'S MEET

By C. H. HADDOX.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 3.—Efforts to solve the financial troubles of the Buckeye state government will feature the activities of the 87th regular biennial session of the Ohio legislature which convened here today.

Continuation of the deadlock, which marked the legislative session here two years ago, between Governor Vic Donahey and the Republican majority in the senate over the question of senatorial confirmation of the governor's selections for membership on the state utilities commission is scheduled as an added feature.

Besides giving consideration to a multitude of measures dealing with local issues in various parts of the state, the legislators will wrestle with proposed statutory enactments designed to solve vexing taxation problems; to provide for an extensive program of highway improvement, amendment of primary and election laws, and changes in the state's dry laws.

As has been the case for a number of sessions, the new legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. There are 138 Republicans, 35 senators and 103 house members, and 35 Democrats, two of which are in the senate and 33 in the house.

Although the prevailing sentiment among the leaders appears to favor a short, snappy legislative session, prediction was frequently made in the legislative chambers today that it will be an extended affair, and that the solons will not finish their work before April.

Seek Way to Avoid Deficit.

Groundwork for major activities by the legislators will be found in bills which will embody recommendations of the joint legislative committees on taxation and economy, highways, and elections which, since the last regular legislative session, gave extended and comprehensive study to the many problems relating to these phases of state government.

One of the most pressing duties confronting the legislators here is that of finding some way to avoid a deficit in the state's general revenue fund. A number of times during recent months, this fund, in the state treasury, was completely wiped out.

For the purpose of preventing the state from being plunged into involuntary bankruptcy, some legislators want the governor and the legislative leaders to get together on a legislative program providing for revision of taxes, which will provide for increased revenues, and for econ-

BY FRANCIS BEEDING

©BY LITTLE, BROWN and CO. RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS:

Quexter, the narrator of the tale, is an American employed by the American Overseas Bank in Paris. He starts for Geneva on business for his bank, stopping at Dijon between trains. While at lunch at an inn a man accosts him—a fellow American, and asks if he may share his room that night as the inn is crowded. He is a small man, a schoolmaster from the middle west, he says, quite undistinguished looking.

He appears absentminded, as if his thoughts are not on what he is saying, and the attention of both is finally called to some new arrivals—a stout, flashily dressed man and a woman.

The woman is young, refined and attractive. The chauffeur accompanying the pair is Japanese.

I put my hands in bewilderment to my throbbing head.

Quexter expects to leave Dijon at 2 a. m., so pays his bill mentioning to the inn proprietor at the time that the American is sharing his room on account of the crowded conditions, whereupon the host expresses surprise and says there is no crowd. Quexter decides the schoolmaster is imperfectly acquainted with the French language.

The schoolmaster is a fussy roommate insisting on the bedroom door being locked and the lights in the room left burning, which bothers Quexter.

CHAPTER THREE.

I fell presently into an uneasy doze, but soon woke to find that my restless companion had left his bed and was standing upright on the floor, gazing at me intently as though apparently to make sure that I was asleep. As I forbore to move, he concluded that I was, and turning away he bent down towards the window which he shut with a snap. He appeared to examine the fastening and presently turned away with a slight exclamation of dissatisfaction. His next move was toward the door opening into the corridor. He went outside for a moment and returned shortly with the valet. Motioning him to be silent, he led him to the window and asked him in a low voice and in excellent French whether it was possible to lock it. The man, surly from being awakened, replied shortly that it was not and left the room. My companion locked the door after him and returned disconsolately to his bed.

I was now fully awake and inclined to be curious. The behavior of my companion was certainly rather odd. His anxiety to be safely sealed up in a lighted bedroom was sufficiently disconcerting. What was more, he had quite clearly gone out of is way to deceive me. He had asked me to act as interpreter for him, on the ground that he knew no French, but as soon as he thought I was asleep, he had conversed with the valet de chambre with an astonishing fluency and a familiar knowledge of the idiom. This threw a strange light upon his behavior with regard to the double room. He could not possibly have misunderstood the proprietor, which must mean that for some queer reason or other he was pining for human companionship.

Curiously enough, I never suspected him of designs upon either myself or my property. The idea that the little man mighth imself be in any way dangerous never once entered my head. I did, however, find myself wondering, rather vaguely, whether his strange behavior could have anything to do with his unmistakable interest in the fat man and his traveling companion. There seemed, however, to be no possible connection, and I soon gave up trying to solve the puzzle.

I was sufficiently curious to determine that I would keep awake myself till the little man was asleep, for I was now more than doubtful about him. No sooner, however, had I formed this resolution than I found myself getting drowsier and drowsier, until at last I suppose I must have fallen into a heavy slumber.

I awoke, with the sudden uncomfortable sensation of one who knows that he has overslept, to the sound of a furious knocking at the door of the room. I started up in bed to find to my dismay that the sunlight was streaming through the window.

I looked in a daze at my watch. It was just past seven o'clock in the morning.

I then glanced towards the other bed and could scarcely believe my eyes.

The little schoolmaster was no longer there!

Meanwhile, the knocking at my door was resumed. Getting out of bed, I crossed the room and discovered to my further amazement that the door was still locked on the inside. I noticed also that the window was open, but that the room was abominably close and stuffy; and that I had a splitting headache, the sort that follows too many mixed drinks on the previous evening.

I turned the key and admitted the valet de chambre, scolding him indignantly for his negligence in not awakening me in time for my train.

Monsieur, he protested, had left no instructions to be called. Nor had the other gentleman, he continued, looking towards the second bed.

"Mon dieu!" he cried suddenly. "The other gentleman has gone."

"So it seems," I replied. "But I did not see him go. Nor did I hear anything, though he appears to have packe up everything and taken all his belongings."

"Monsieur was sleeping perhaps too profoundly," said the man. "Monsieur refused to wake up this morning. I have knocked loudly several times."

I put my hands in bewilderment to my throbbing head.

"The gentleman departed, perhaps, by the window," the valet suggested helpfully.

I walked to the window and found that it opened on to a long balcony which could be approached from several other rooms of the hotel.

"He is the friend of Monsieur?" the valet de chambre insinuated.

"Not at all," I said sharply. "Moreover, he shared my room last night as the result of a false statement. He said that all the other rooms of the hotel were taken."

We agreed that it was a mystery, and so it remained. Subsequent inquiries showed that no one had seen or heard the little American leave the hotel. He had disappeared, leaving no trace or clew behind him, together with a small bill for which the proprietor vainly attempted to make me responsible.

I had no choice but to wait in Dijon for the day train from Paris to Geneva, which went through at about three in the afternoon. I spent the interval in recovering slowly from one of the worst headaches I have ever known, and in beating my brains for an explanation of the peculiar behavior of the little schoolmaster, and of his still more peculiar disappearance. The only possible theory, namely, that the man was a crook, was definitely beside the point. He had not taken from the bedroom so much as a toothbrush, though I was traveling with a tidy wad of notes which I had very carelessly taken no precautions to conceal or to put beyond his reach. The coat in the pocket of which they reposed had been dangling in full view of my companion all through the night, within easy reach of his fingers.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

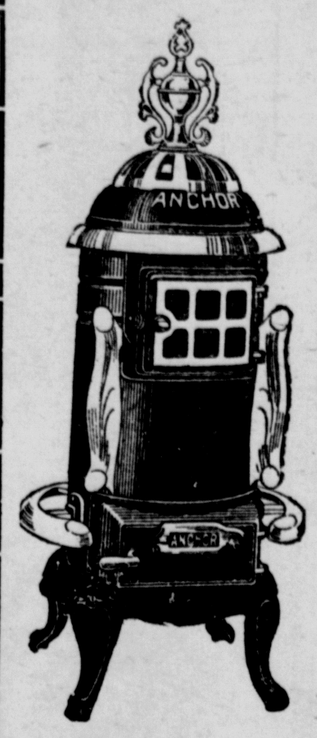

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

When Grandma's Grandma Was a Little Girl

SHE had to light the candles each evening with a thin wax taper—for they had no lamps in those days.

And her mother swept with a heavy willow broom, washed with a rubbing board, ironed with a flatiron, cooked over a fire in an open fireplace. Electric refrigeration was unheard of, sewing was done by hand.

If grandma's grandma could come back to earth and see how easily and how cheaply mother sweeps, washes, irons, cooks and even preserves food—all with electricity—she could tell us all how fortunate we are to have such a dependable electric service.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

A defendant in criminal court the other day acknowledged that he had committed a murder, but he couldn't fool the jury, and they voted him innocent as usual.

BELATED BUT SINCERE.

The funeral was over. The elderly widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage whistling to himself. A neighbor passed and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said,striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eph," said the supposedly bereaved one, cheerfully. "Dun't know ez I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin'—her," said the astonished neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children and always done mighty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I know that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'. But goldern her, I never did like her!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona, Jan. 1.—For no reason at all I am on my way to California for a brief stay. This train appropriately named The Chief, thunders along from Chicago to Los Angeles over the picteresque old Santa Fe trail in 63 hours. Soon there will be three day trains from New York to the coast.

One cannot help but think of the pioneers who battled their way in ox drawn prairie schooners that their perfumed descendants might enjoy a humanized Pullman service that even provides oblivion for discarded razor blades. Few touches of the old west survive.

Here and there one sees the last of the vanishing Americans. They loiter on station platforms, their hats festooned with gaudy buttons, as final sop to their love for color, complacently smoking rolled cigarettes and selling Navajo blankets to their conquerors.

The miracle of winter no longer confounds them. The automobile has solved the problem of transportation. Cities along the old trail are as sprightly as those on Long Island. Sheep herders, turning in lonely saddles to gaze, dot the plains in wake of their slow moving, grazing charges.

Now and then a figure appears in the doorway of a lean-to in the foothills waving rather pathetically—perhaps an Easterner struggling valiantly to health in the open and cheered by a brief glimpse of a civilization to which he hopes soon to return.

At a few stations wild roving dogs come down from the hills to devour scraps tossed them by thoughtful cooks from the diners. A group of them surrounded my dog like hyenas in a semi-circle. He is a city bred parlor pooch but the hair stood on his back defiantly. I was quite proud.

Therei s a light heartedness about travelers to California. Every train carries those who have thrown off the yoke of business and look forward to front porch rockers and valetudinarian ease. In the East the adenoid flourishes. Here the Adam's apple.

Chicago strikes me as the place where the west really begins. There, one sees the first touch of cattlemen in wide hats. It is always associated in my mind with Parmalee buses, colored waiters and doleful police whistles. Not even New York has the jangle and robust vitality. There is a charm to its dingy alleys, murky river and noisy clang. The lake front becoming a glorified Venice with peninsulas of ribbonlike roads unwinding along the horizon. Skyscrapers seem as high as those in New York.

In Chicago I spent an hour with James Keeley, once regarded as a thunderer of the news rooms in the days when my journalistic pin feathers were sprouting. I circled his newspaper building twice in those days trying to muster courage to ask him for a job but couldn't make it. I found him a soft voiced gentleman who would not look out of place as a curate in an English country side. The myth grew he was an editorial orge and yet he told me he had never fired a man in his life. "They fire themselves," he said. Keeley was a London street waif and his career is an American classic.

There is a sweep and majestic grandeur to Arizona and its sheer cliffs and deserts that no other state has, and I've seen them all. There are bleak portions of it to be sure that seem like wasteland but generally it is overwhelmingly beautiful. It has untold wealth never tapped and some day soon Arizona will be "discovered." Mark this prediction! I'm the bright boy incidentally who predicted the movies would never be popular.

New Mexico and its adobe houses also stir the imagination. Albuquerque is different. No American city is exactly like it. It blends the old Indian influence with modern Americanism in quaint manner. One sees the up-to-the-minute flapper tripping down to meet trains, and also the gnarled red chieftains squatting on the platform selling pots and vases.

Soon the trek across the Mojave desert and down grade into the land of roses with a back-ground of snow capped Sierras cowled in mystery. That, mesdames et messieurs, is California!

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

The Postal Savings System has been in operation over 15 years and, as has been said by one of the largest banking houses of the United States, "has passed beyond the experimental stage and now may be safely regarded as a permanent government institution." It is pointed out that this limitation is hampering since there are many depositors who have reached the legal limit, and who would further utilize the service if the total deposits which can be accepted from an individual were substantially increased.

The Postal Savings System has been the refuge of the timid ones who fear to bank their money. There are many, both native and foreign born, who have a fear of banks, but who have implicit confidence in Uncle Sam. There are those who have just reason to be fearful because they have put their faith, and their savings, into institutions which have failed for one reason or another. Some years ago a pseudo private savings bank on the New York East Side closed leaving hundreds of depositors without a penny of their life savings. Most of them were Italians and many couldn't understand what it was all about and stood patiently all night in front of the bank waiting for the return of those to whom they had entrusted their money.

It is probable that the majority of those caught in this disaster would hesitate before taking a chance on any other bank. With perhaps only a slight knowledge of English it is difficult for them to differentiate between a reputable institution and one which might be of the "fly-by-night" type.

They Trust the Government.

After the above failure the postmaster general directed that 25,000 circulars be published in the Italian language and distributed on the East Side. These told of the Postal Savings System and invited these newcomers to America to avail themselves of the security afforded by the government. As a matter of fact, leaflets telling how to make use of the Postal Savings System have been published in a great many languages so that the man coming from any part of the world may understand how he can save his money and be sure of not losing it, and they have brought thousands of depositors.

Postal savings certificates may be purchased in denominations of one, two, five, ten, twenty and 50 cents, and one, two and five dollars. The stamps take the place of a depositor's pass book or deposit slips issued by commercial banks. When a depositor wishes to withdraw any of his money he simply presents to the postmaster a stamp of the denomination which he wants cashed.

Postal savings certificates may be exchanged on January 1 and July 1 of each year for postal savings bonds bearing interest at 2 1-2 per cent. A growing appreciation of this facility was indicated during the fiscal year 1926 by the fact that such bonds to the amount of $544,160 were issued to 496 depositors, which was an increase of $213,020 over the year 1925.

Although the number of depositors decreased during the fiscal year 1926, the loss in accounts being .75 per cent, the average principal per depositor increased 2.29 per cent. Also the classification for 1926 shows that the distribution of deposits has become more widespread and a more varied use of the system is reflected. There has been likewise an increase in the percentage of native born depositors.

The framers of the original postal savings act expected that this system would encourage thrift among the people of the country, thus supplementing the activities of banking institutions; would keep in the United States a substantial portion of the large amounts which formerly were sent abroad by international money orders; would bring to light and put into circulation hoarded money, and would offer facilities where the timid and fearful might in times of financial stress place their savings in perfect security. In this way might be prevented the withdrawal from circulation of large sums at times when most needed.

Bankers Once Antagonistic.

When the Postal Savings System first went into effect banking institutions were inclined to be antagonistic toward it. There was a tendency on their part to feel that some of their legitimate business was being taken from them. It is, therefore, interesting to note what a postmaster in a large city recently said. "At this time it may be well to state that almost every one of the ten local banks holding postal savings funds has come to believe in the system as a valuable aid to their own business in training savers and circulating funds."

Postmaster General New in his report further makes the statement that the postal savings system has indeed been a refuge for the timid in the areas of bank suspensions in the west, middle west and south. It has proved a stabilizing influence in the financial circles of these regions also since the funds that are deposited with the postmasters are redeposited in the bank, thus completing a circle and showing a sympathetic co-operation with the business world. This has been frequently noted since the World war.

There are now 6,623 depositories in operation and at the end of the fiscal year the value of certificates of deposit to the credit of those making use of this method of saving was $134,178,558. As has been said before, it is believed that this amount would have been greater were it not for the present limitation of $2,500 for each depositor. Postal savings funds were held by 3,604 banks, which included national banks, state banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System, state banks which are not members of that system, and private banks under state supervision.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S. S. S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

One Year's Toll of Carelessness

Review-Tribune statistics show that 58 persons, 20 of them East Liverpool residents, met violent or accidental deaths in Columbiana county during the past year. Aside from four murders and six suicides, most of the fatalities can be attributed to carelessness.

With nineteen victims, including six crossing accidents, to its credit, the automobile tops the list of causes. Five persons were killed on the railroad, four were burned or scalded to death, two died in coasting crashes, two were shot, one was asphyxiated and the other fatalities were due to miscellaneous causes.

Most of the deaths were the result of chance taking. This was especially true in the automobile and grade crossing accidents, in which speed mania and failure to obey the command painted on a sign to "Stop, Look and Listen" were to blame.

The grade crossing should be a warning to all motorists and pedestrians. However, the driver of the car or the boy or girl or adult pedestrian "took a chance," hoping to save a few seconds. And death was the penalty.

Thousands of automobile accidents on public highways and railroad crossings annually indict the motoring public of inexcusable indifference and criminal carelessness.

Don't gamble with human lives.

The Intelligent Insane

Who reads the best books? People with the best minds? No. The librarian of a big branch of a city library, a branch which has in its district a very large asylum for the insane, reports that it is these inmates who demand, and actually read and enjoy, the books of greatest intellectual value.

"Long-winded treaties on ethics, civil and international law, economics, sociology and psychology even, and ponderous volumes of theology, art and architecture are in constant demand," says the librarian.

It seems strange, perhaps, yet a little thought shows it to be reasonable. People with dull minds are not so apt to be confined in these places as people with active minds gone astray in some one direction. They are not "insane" on every subject. And they have time to read.

Light fiction gives a pleasant rest and wholesome relaxation to the busy mind, but anyone who has ever had typhoid, an operation or a sprained ankle knows that when there is nothing else to do but read, light fiction soon palls. The succession of long and dreary days with nothing to do but live through them calls for stronger meat.

The insane, moreover, are no longer hopelessly so. More is being learned every day about healing sick minds. The heavy tomes are not only a comfort to those waiting, but for those who rejoin the normal world later on, they doubtless strengthen the powers of living and doing.

Coming In

With the advent of the new year we are told that a new process for reducing iron ore which will make steel cheaper than wood has been worked out and is now being installed by some of the big steel companies. This is to change the whole steel industry, we are told.

There are now 22,000,000 automobiles skittering around over the face of the country, and the new year promises the production of 5,000,000 more, some few of which, doubtless, will be added to the grand total of home consumption. The face of the countryside has already been changed, and what we can look for is some more of the same. We are not barred, however, from hoping for some slight improvement in automobile morals and manners.

An unwillingness to inflict capital punishment seems definitely established in the news. But a great willingness to grab criminals and keep them from making nuisances of themselves any more than necessary is also indicated. Public opinion is demanding drastic measures and swift ones right up to the edge of taking life itself. There are even some few signs of intelligent use of measures of prevention. These are a few of the high lights of the old year.

Sea Cold

Are you shivering a little these nights? Even the south has been known to shiver in January. You may hold out the hand of fellowship to France.

The scientists say it is the Gulf Stream that is doing it. Earthquakes of the ocean bottom have shifted the stream a bit off its normal course. If many more of these happen, the stream may turn towards Iceland, and make that little country a summer resort. France will be pretty cold in those days, but perhaps it will take a leaf from the Swiss book and organize its winter sports as a leading industry.

But you can plan your trip this year or next anyhow. Before winter flowers bloom in Greenland, and icebergs hover off the coast of France, the sea must keep altering its great currents for 1,000 years.

BELATED BUT SINCERE.

The funeral was over. The elderly widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage whistling to himself. A neighbor passed and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said, striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eph," said the supposedly bereaved one, cheerfully. "Dun't know ez I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin'—her," said the astonished neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children and always done mighty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I know that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'. But goldern her, I never did like her!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona, Jan. 1.—For no reason at all I am on my way to California for a brief stay. This train appropriately named The Chief, thunders along from Chicago to Los Angeles over the picteresque old Santa Fe trail in 63 hours. Soon there will be three day trains from New York to the coast.

One cannot help but think of the pioneers who battled their way in ox drawn prairie schooners that their perfumed descendants might enjoy a humanized Pullman service that even provides oblivion for discarded razor blades. Few touches of the old west survive.

Here and there one sees the last of the vanishing Americans. They loiter on station platforms, their hats festooned with gaudy buttons, as final sop to their love for color, complacently smoking rolled cigarettes and selling Navajo blankets to their conquerors.

The miracle of winter no longer confounds them. The automobile has solved the problem of transportation. Cities along the old trail are as sprightly as those on Long Island. Sheep herders, turning in lonely saddles to gaze, dot the plains in wake of their slow moving, grazing charges.

Now and then a figure appears in the doorway of a lean-to in the foothills waving rather pathetically—perhaps an Easterner struggling valiantly to health in the open and cheered by a brief glimpse of civilization to which he hopes soon to return.

At a few stations wild roving dogs come down from the hills to devour scraps tossed them by thoughtful cooks from the diners. A group of them surrounded my dog like hyenas in a semi-circle. He is a city bred parlor pooch but the hair stood on his back defiantly. I was quite proud.

There is a light heartedness about travelers to California. Every train carries those who have thrown off the yoke of business and look forward to front porch rockers and valetudinarian ease. In the East the adenoid flourishes. Here the Adam's apple.

Chicago strikes me as the place where the west really begins. There, one sees the first touch of cattlemen in wide hats. It is always associated in my mind with Parmalee buses, colored waiters and doleful police whistles. Not even New York has the jangle and robust vitality. There is a charm to its dingy alleys, murky river and noisy clang. The lake front becoming a glorified Venice with peninsulas of ribbonlike roads unwinding along the horizon. Skyscrapers seem as high as those in New York.

In Chicago I spent an hour with James Keeley, once regarded as a thunderer of the news rooms in the days when my journalistic pin feathers were sprouting. I circled his newspaper building twice in those days trying to muster courage to ask him for a job but couldn't make it. I found him a soft voiced gentleman who would not look out of place as a curate in an English country side. The myth grew he was an editorial orge and yet he told me he had never fired a man in his life. "They fire themselves," he said. Keeley was a London street waif and his career is an American classic.

There is a sweep and majestic grandeur to Arizona and its sheer cliffs and deserts that no other state has, and I've seen them all. There are bleak portions of it to be sure that seem like wasteland but generally it is overwhelmingly beautiful. It has untold wealth never tapped and some day soon Arizona will be "discovered." Mark this prediction! I'm the bright boy incidentally who predicted the movies would never be popular.

New Mexico and its adobe houses also stir the imagination. Albuquerque is different. No American city is exactly like it. It blends the old Indian influence with modern Americanism in quaint manner. One sees the up-to-the-minute flapper tripping down to meet trains, and also the gnarled red chieftains squatting on the platform selling pots and vases.

Soon the trek across the Mojave desert and down grade into the land of roses with a back-ground of snow capped Sierras cowled in mystery. That, mesdames et messieurs, is California!

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

To Raise Postal Savings Limit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—Recommendations are to be made to congress to raise the limitation from $2,500 to $5,000 for postal savings. At the present time no one depositor may hold more than $2,500 worth of postal certificates. Postmaster General New, in a report to the House of Representatives, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Postal Savings System, urges the need for raising the limit.

The Postal Savings System has been in operation over 15 years and, as has been said by one of the largest banking houses of the United States, "has passed beyond the experimental stage and now may be safely regarded as a permanent government institution." It is pointed out that this limitation is hampering since there are many depositors who have reached the legal limit, and who would further utilize the service if the total deposits which can be accepted from an individual were substantially increased.

The Postal Savings System has been the refuge of the timid ones who fear to bank their money. There are many, both native and foreign born, who have a fear of banks, but who have implicit confidence in Uncle Sam. There are those who have just reason to be fearful because they have put their faith, and their savings, into institutions which have failed for one reason or another. Some years ago a pseudo private savings bank on the New York East Side closed leaving hundreds of depositors without a penny of their life savings. Most of them were Italians and many couldn't understand what it was all about and stood patiently all night in front of the bank waiting for the return of those to whom they had entrusted their money.

It is probable that the majority of those caught in this disaster would hesitate before taking a chance on any other bank. With perhaps only a slight knowledge of English it is difficult for them to differentiate between a reputable institution and one which might be of the "fly-by-night" type.

They Trust the Government.

After the above failure the postmaster general directed that 25,000 circulars be published in the Italian language and distributed on the East Side. These told of the Postal Savings System and invited these newcomers to America to avail themselves of the security afforded by the government. As a matter of fact, leaflets telling how to make use of the Postal Savings System have been published in a great many languages so that the man coming from any part of the world may understand how he can save his money and be sure of not losing it, and they have brought thousands of depositors.

Postal savings certificates may be purchased in denominations of one, two, five, ten, twenty and 50 cents, and one, two and five dollars. The stamps take the place of a depositor's pass book or deposit slips issued by commercial banks. When a depositor wishes to withdraw any of his money he simply presents to the postmaster a stamp of the denomination which he wants cashed.

Postal savings certificates may be exchanged on January 1 and July 1 of each year for postal savings bonds bearing interest at 2 1-2 per cent. A growing appreciation of this facility was indicated during the fiscal year 1926 by the fact that such bonds to the amount of $544,160 were issued to 496 depositors, which was an increase of $213,020 over the year 1925.

Although the number of depositors decreased during the fiscal year 1926, the loss in accounts being .75 per cent, the average principal per depositor increased 2.29 per cent. Also the classification for 1926 shows that the distribution of deposits has become more widespread and a more varied use of the system is reflected. There has been likewise an increase in the percentage of native born depositors.

The framers of the original postal savings act expected that this system would encourage thrift among the people of the country, thus supplementing the activities of banking institutions; would keep in the United States a substantial portion of the large amounts which formerly were sent abroad by international money orders; would bring to light and put into circulation hoarded money, and would offer facilities where the timid and fearful might in times of financial stress place their savings in perfect security. In this way might be prevented the withdrawal from circulation of large sums at times when most needed.

Bankers Once Antagonistic.

When the Postal Savings System first went into effect banking institutions were inclined to be antagonistic toward it. There was a tendency on their part to feel that some of their legitimate business was being taken from them. It is, therefore, interesting to note what a postmaster in a large city recently said. "At this time it may be well to state that almost every one of the ten local banks holding postal savings funds has come to believe in the system as a valuable aid to their own business in training savers and circulating funds."

Postmaster General New in his report further makes the statement that the postal savings system has indeed been a refuge for the timid in the areas of bank suspensions in the west, middle west and south. It has proved a stabilizing influence in the financial circles of these regions also since the funds that are deposited with the postmasters are redeposited in the bank, thus completing a circle and showing a sympathetic co-operation with the business world. This has been frequently noted since the World war.

There are now 6,623 depositories in operation and at the end of the fiscal year the value of certificates of deposit to the credit of those making use of this method of saving was $134,178,558. As has been said before, it is believed that this amount would have been greater were it not for the present limitation of $2,500 for each depositor. Postal savings funds were held by 3,604 banks, which included national banks, state banks which were members of the Federal Reserve System, state banks which are not members of that system, and private banks under state supervision.

Miss Gladys Atnoid, who underwent an operation in a Steubenville hospital, is recovering.

Fable: Once there was a fond mother who started her child in school without giving the teacher anw advice.—Mansfield Journal.

Under the postal savings act the board of trustees is authorized to make certain investments, and during the year $250,360 was invested in postal savings bonds which were purchased from the holders at par and accrued interest. This brought the total holdings of such bonds up to $10,003,300. In addition to these, the treasurer of the United States is holding for the account of the board of trustees liberty bonds having a par value of $26,676,750.

The small depositor who is afraid to put his money into a bank need have no fear of losing anything he entrusts to the Postal Savings System. That, for the most part, he has no such fear is clearly indicated by the total amount that has been received from those who would have as security no other than the faith of the government.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S. S. S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—After reaching a slightly higher range of prices in the first period today, the industrial stocks were subjected to further selling pressure and the market developed an irregular tone. Motor stocks and a few of the independent oils were the leaders in this movement, but in most cases the highest prices for the period were registered at the opening, with a gradual tapering off as the session proceeded.

Uneasiness in the Mexican oil laws situation resulted in further heaviness in the Pan American and American Smelting stocks, which reached the low levels of the movement.

Selling pressure was more persistent in the second hour and prices of the bulk of the market leaders settled down to a lower range. Baldwin locomotive declined about 4 points to 151½; U. S. steel was down a point and Pullman 2. The volume of trading at the low levels was comparatively small, and the market appeared to be marking time rather than entering a definite movement in either direction.

Call money unchanged at 5 per cent.

86 PENNSY MEN ARE RETIRED ON NEW YEAR'S

Each Presented With Certificate Signed by President.

ON HONOR ROLL

Twelve Central Region Employes End Services.

Eighty-six employes of the Pennsylvania railroad were retired on pension yesterday under the company's regulations. In connection with their retirement the custom was inaugurated of presenting each retiring employe with a certificate, signed by the president of the company, setting forth his length of service and position and the fact that he has been relieved from active duty and placed upon the railroad's "Roll of Honor."

The certificates were delivered to retiring employes by divison superintendents, heads of departments or other employing officers. Each was accompanied by a personal letter of congratulations and good wishes.

A simple design has been adopted for the certificates. The name of the Pennsylvania railroad is at the top, with an engraved keystone in red containing the interlaced initials, "P. R. R." in gilt, immediately below. In the body of the documents appears the following: "This certifies that (name and position of retiring employe) has been relieved of active duty after—years of service, and that his name is enrolled on the Roll of Honor." Below the date is the president's personal signature.

Not only will the new certificates be issued to employes pensioned today and in the future, but all living "Honor Roll" men will receive them as fast as they can be prepared.

Charles O. Fulmer, tool maker, Indianapolis division, is the oldest employe in point of service, who retired yesterday. He has been on the payrolls of the Pennsylvania railroad for 56 years, eight months, constituting one of the longest records of employment since the pension system was established 27 years ago.

Of the total number of employes now retiring four have been in the employ of the company for 50 years or more each, while 54 have had records of 40 years service or more. Those with a half century of more of duty to their credit below:

Western Region — Charles O. Fulmer, tool maker, Indianapolis division, 1215 Pleasant street, Indianapolis, Ind., 56 years, eight months of duty; Edward Flanagan, track foreman, Cincinnati division, Cedarville, O., 51 years, eight months of duty.

Altoona Works—Joseph W. Fleming, Jr., painter, Altoona car shop, 224 First avenue, Altoona, Pa., 54 years, four months of duty.

General Offices — Robert Trimble, assistant chief engineer, Glen Osborne, Pa., 51 years, six months of service.

Of the 86 men retiring from the railroad's service 42 are on the payroll of the Eastern Region; 12 on the Central Region; 17 on the Western Region; nine at the Altoona Works; three in the general offices at Broad street station and three of the Long Island railroad.

Since the establishment of the railroad's pension plan on January 1, 1900, a total of 19,809 employes have been retired under its provisions. Of these 11,183 have died, and 8,262 are still living and receiving pensions.

Why He Recommends Lucky Strike —Because "It's Toasted"

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI, famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera of New York City, is a great singer and he prefers Lucky Strikes for two reasons—greater enjoyment and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment, and, second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

VICTIM FOUGHT

Body Was Found in Big Miami River.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 3.—After nearly three months of rigid investigation the mystery slaying of Beulah Purvis, 19-year-old "cotton-stockinged" country girl of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, stood solved today.

Joseph Carr, 23, alias Joseph Elliott, negro, confressed that he committed the crime that has baffled city, county and private investigators since October 20.

He made the confession to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Basler yesterday following his arrest Saturday on a burglarly charge.

"I grabbed her as she stepped from a street car at Valley Junction," he related, "and when she pulled off her slipper and pounded me with it, I just kept hitting her until she fainted."

Attacked Victim.

This, without any show of emotion, the powerful negro, described by Assistant Prosecutor Basler as the "perfect gorilla type" slowly unveiled the mystery that had its incipiency when the battered and half naked body of the Indiana "hired girl" was found in the Big Miami river near here last fall.

"I picked her up and started for the river," he continued, according to his confession, "she was very heavy, it seemed and I rested three times before I got to the bridge."

He said he carried her under the bridge and there attacked the young girl.

"Then I tried to awaken her, but she didn't answer, so I waded into the river with her body and dropped it," he said.

Although police and county authorities primarily though that the Purvis girl's murder centered about a Harrison, O., roller skating rink, where she often went, although regularly spurned because she was a "cotton-stockinged" country girl—they declared today that the negro's confession dovetailed with all their evidence.

He rehearsed the crime flawlessly, they said.

Legislature's Meet

omies in operating expenses of state governmental departments.

Both administration and anti-administration forces agree that the state will incur a deficit of approximately $10,000,000 within the next two years, unless expenditures are curbed, or tax laws revised.

Some Republican legislators concur in the recommendation, credited to Governor Donahey, that the legislature raise the corporation franchise tax rate to what it was before the legislators reduced it two years ago. The revision, it is estimated, reduced the state's income about $4,000,000 during the past two years.

Urge Abolition of Uniform Tax.

Abolition of the uniform tax rule in Ohio and enactment of measures providing for new forms of indirect taxation, it is said, will be urged by some of the legislators as a means of curing the state's financial ills. A bill, it was indicated, will be offered providing for a tax levy of three cents per gallon on all fuel used for motor vehicles in Ohio. The present tax is two cents per gallon.

Bills, embodying recommendations of the joint legislative committee on highways, providing for an annual expenditure of $25,000,000 for construction and maintenance of highway; for creation of a state highway board and separation of the state highway department of public works, and for reclassification of the state's roads into state, county and township systems, are scheduled to be introduced.

Pointing out that, under existing state laws, the state highway director must, also, be state superintendent of public works, chief highway engineer and state building commissioner, a number of legislators are urging that a law be enacted providing for appointment of a state highway commissioner by a state highway board, the commissioner serving for not less than four years.

Dealing with the problem of financing highways, members of the joint highway committee recommend appropriation of $8,000,000 for new construction in addition to $2,750,000 federal aid money; $16,000,000 for repairs, widening and reconstruction of bridges and highways on the state highway system, and $1,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings on this system.

Modification of "Dry" Acts.

A bitter fight is expected to develop this legislative session when a number of legislators seek enactment of measures intended to modify provisions of the state's "dry" acts.

State Senator, George H. Bender, Cleveland, Republican, has announced his intention of offering a bill providing for limitation of the powers of justices of the peace to their own townships.

Legislators who are ardent supporters of views expressed by officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League are expected to oppose vigorously the proposed Bender bill as well as other attempts to amend Ohio's dry laws. League officials have registered vigorous disapproval of contemplated measures which, they believe, will "weaken" the law enforcement statutes.

Other strenuous contests this session are anticipated if legislators make good their threats to offer bills permitting Bible-reading in the public schools, and repealing the Pence law which permits utility companies to collect increased rates, under bond, 120 days after their new schedules have been filed with the state untilities commission, and to continue collecting the boosted rates pending determination of a permanent rate by the commission.

The fight over the Bible-reading bill, vetoed by Governor Donahey, was one of the most spectacular contests during the last session of the Ohio legislature.

Donahey Urges Short Term.

Some legislators do not favor outright repeal of the Pence act. They indicate, however, their willingness to support a bill fixing a certain time limit within which the state utilities commission must make final disposition of the proposal to change rates. Utility companies are expected to put up a big fight against all attempts to prohibit them from collecting increased rates under bond.

Recommendations that the session be short and that few laws be enacted are expected to be made by Governor Donahey in his message which he will submit to the legislature next week. Among other things the governor's message, it is understood, will deal with taxation, penal institutions and proposed changes in the election laws.

The governor, it is understood, will oppose proposed changes in the primary election law; will recommend legislation to relieve overcrowded conditions at the Ohio penitentiary and other state penal institutions, and favor amending the Dempsey corporation franchise act so as to increase the revenue from foreign and domestic corporations.

Bills providing for the care of the state's feeble-minded dependents, bettering conditions in state institutions, and changing the school system will be included in the avalanche of measures to be dumped into the legislative hopper here this winter.

Find Loaded Gun; Arrest Six Persons

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 3.—Four women and two men were under arrest here today, pending investigation, following their detention yesterday when a loaded shotgun was found in a taxi in which they were riding.

LEVY OF TAXES ON BILLBOARDS IS PROPOSED

OTHER BOOSTS

Three Possible Plans for Financial Policy Suggested.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3. — Recommendations that Ohio legislators this winter enact additional taxation measures, which, it is believed, will increase the state's revenues $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 a year, are on file with legislative leaders here today.

These recommendations, submitted in a partial report by the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy, favor the levying of taxes on billboards, a one-third increase in the corporation franchise taxes, increases in excise taxes on utilities other than railroads, a stamp tax on conveyances, deeds, etc., similar to that collected in 1924 by the U. S. government, and a mortgage recording tax.

"It is apparent that present capital outlay appropriations cannot be financed without substantial increases in revenue and no additional projects can be thought of without still greater revenues being required," reads the committee's report.

The committee suggests the following three possible plans for dealing with the state's future financial policy:

"First: Reduce expenses, combine departments where possible and eliminate unnecessary employes." This cannot be accomplished, the committee admitted, to a point where a deficit in the state's general revenue fund could be avoided.

"Second: Eliminate all expenditures for canital outlay except those for new highway construction necessary to obtain federal aid money, unless new taxes are levied to provide funds.

"Third: If the present rate of current expense and permanent improvement expense is to continue, it will be necessary to levy additional taxes which will produce substantial additional revenues."

LATIN-AMERICA SCORNS U. S.

Washington Alarmed Over Evidences of Unpopularity.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Coolidge and his advisers are considerably disturbed over the increasing evidences of American unpopularity in the countries of Latin-America.

These evidences have been accompanied by circumstantial reports that a strong movement is afoot in Central and South America, backed by powerful influences, for the organization of a real Pan-American union, with the United States on the outside looking in, rather than being the directing force, as is the case with the existing union.

It has for its object the welding of the Spanish-speaking peoples of the western hemisphere into a cohesive organization to combat what many South American statesmen consider the persistent encroachment of "Yankee Imperialism," and "dollar diplomacy."

There is reason to believe, from confidential reports reaching Washington, that this movement has gained considerable actual headway in the last few months, and that it centers in Mexico City, where the Calles government shows increasing signs of permanency and power. It is known, for instance, that the project has been seriously discussed, and at length, by high Mexican officials and representatives of other South and Central American countries in Mexico City.

American Good Will Flyers Welcomed To Guatemala City

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Jan. 3.—The American good will flyers, having been welcomed to Guatemala by the president and his cabinet, are preparing to leave here on Tuesday for San Salvador.

The flyers reached here after an adventurous flight from Salinas Cruz, Mexico. Part of the day they flew through a storm.

The flight over the mountains into Guatemala was made at an altitude of 8,000 feet.

Lisbon Church's History.

The history of the Lisbon church dates back to August, 1827, when the Mahoning Baptist association made up of about 15 or 20 churches in the local district met in a building, now a dwelling, located just east of the Moose building, on East High street, Lisbon. Among those attending the meeting was Walter Scott, who taught at an academy in Steubenville, a graduate of the University of Edinburg, one of the best educated men in the west, a natural orator and a born genius. Scott came to Lisbon in November, 1827 and conducted a series of revival meetings. His first convert was William Amend.

Under Scott's leadership his converts soon dropped the name of the Baptist church and became known as the Disciples of Christ. A new edifice was erected in 1841. In 1875 the house of worship was reconstructed at a cost of $5,000. Rev. William Baxter was in charge of the church at that time, his pastorate stretching over a period of 12 years.

While Rev. E. R. Black was pastor of the church in 1888, the Christian Endeavor Society was organized. The pipe organ was installed in 1894 while C. M. Oliphant was pastor. Two years later while Rev. A. B. Russell was pastor a missionary society was formed. A mission band and Junior Christian Endeavor Society followed. In 1900 while Rev. George Fowler was pastor an Aid Society was formed.

During June, 1909, plans were prepared for a new building. The present structure was erected and dedicated in February 6, 1910. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by H. Newton Miller, who was then secretary of the Ohio Christian Missionary society. The pastor then was Rev. Traverse Harrison.

Ladies of the church formed a Silver Circle in 1912 as a means of bringing about a closer acquaintance among members. The Young Ladies' Circle was later organized for the younger women.

In March, 1925, Rev. R. J. Bennett took charge of the church which then had a membership of 500.

GRAND JURORS OPEN SESSION

Felix J. Savage, East Liverpool, is Named Foreman.

The January term of common pleas court opened at Lisbon at 11 o'clock this morning with the empaneling of the grand jury.

The jury is composed of 14 men and one woman. Nine men from the Lisbon district were placed in the jury box because of the illness of others who had been summoned.

The jurors are: Mrs. Cora McClain, Salem; A. W. Stiver, Salem; Edward Foulks, Calcutta; Felix J. Savage, East Liverpool; Gus Alexander, East Liverpool; H. S. Burnett, Blair Allison, William P. Whitacre, Bernard Fultner, John Suffle, George Bradbury, Louis Endley, Elmer Richardson, Howard Frazer and Stewart Patterson, all of Lisbon.

Savage was appointed foreman by the court, and William Frazier was sworn in as court constable.

The charge of the court to the jury occupied 25 minutes and the jury went into session in court room No. 2 at 11:30 o'clock.

Former School Stars Defeated in Season's Opener.

Chester High basketball five opened the season Friday night by defeating, 18 to 13, a team composed of former Chester High stars in the old merry-go-round building at Rock Springs park, which has been fitted up as a playing floor.

Both squads showed up to good advantage considering they had little practice. They battled on even terms for the greater part of the game, but during the last few minutes Coach Wilde's lads rolled up enough points to nose out the veterans.

Lineups and summaries:

Chester High—Simcox and Miller, forwards; Bartley, center; Kimble and Hinds, guards.

Ex-High—Ewing and Bennett, forwards; Pinney, center; Tuttie and Campbell, guards.

Substitutions—Hoskinson for Hinds. Field goals—Simcox 3, Kimble 4, Ewing, Pinney, 2, Campbell 2.

Foul goals—Simcox, Bartley 2, Hinds, Campbell 2, Tuttle.

Dry Chief Says Solution of Poison Rum Problem Looms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The government can stop poisoning liquor without materially interfering with the effectiveness of prohibition enforcement, it was admitted today by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief.

"We will soon have this problem solved," said Andrews. "Both government and private chemists are now working on new formulas (non-poisonous) and we expect results shortly."

Andrew's statement was made just as congress was convening again at the capitol, with the wets prepared to wage warfare against the continuance of fatal poisons being placed in industrial alcohol.

Kentucky Man Dies In Gun Fight With Deputy Sheriff

FLEMING, Ky., Jan. 3.—Jacob Noble, 22, was dead here today following a pistol battle with Deputy Sheriff William Marshall near Blackmey, yesterday. According to reports here, Noble, a member of the noted feud family of Breathitt county, resisted arrest, and was killed by the deputy after seriously wounding him.

Beatty is Fined $25 on Disorderly Conduct Charge

James C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, was fined $25 and costs upon a disorderly conduct charge at a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley, Friday afternoon. The judge reserved his decision on the charge of intoxication also filed against Beatty.

Beatty was arrested by Patrolman James Haley in Larkins' restaurant Christmas eve. At the trial he was represented by Attorney George T. Farrell, Lisbon, while Solicitor Frank Hoover and Attorney Blaine H. Cochran appeared for the city.

Beatty has been given 10 days in which to carry his case on error to the common pleas court, and in the meantime he will not be required to pay his fine. Judge Hanley has not indicated when he will render a decision on the intoxication charge.

The court room was crowded during the trial.

Felsch Will Reveal New Scandal if He is Paid $1,000

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 3.—Oscar (Happy) Felsch, member of the Chicago "Black Sox," and a teammate of Charles Risberg, declared today he was ready to come to Chicago and reveal a "new baseball scandal" to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

"If Landis pays me $1,000 I will tell a lot more about baseball than has been told," Felsch said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner was not at his office today but it was stated Oscar Felsch, former White Sox player, who has promised to reveal another baseball scandal, would probably be brought here to talk with Landis.

It was stated the same offer made Risberg would probably be given Felsch. Risberg was paid his expenses here and also a sum of money.

The amount paid Risberg has not been made public but was believed to have been at least $1,000.

Retrenchment

of finance and common sense demands that we balance our budget and that our appropriations shall not exceed our revenues.

"The revenues of the state will be equally and justly distributed to the various departments and activities, but if these demands exceed the amount that is available for expenditures there is only one course open and that is retrenchment. This has been the policy of the administration at Washington; it, also, is going to be the policy in Ohio.

"The burden of taxation cannot be increased, unless it is necessary to maintain the credit of the state," Gray said. "This is one of the problems of this session and I am sure every house member will meet the responsibility fearlessly."

The house recessed at noon until 2:30 p. m. today. The senate, shortly after noon, recessed until 10 a. m. Tuesday, when the legislators will meet in joint session in the house chamber and canvass the vote cast at the November election for state officers, including governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state and state treasurer.

The house members this afternoon were to continue their work of organization.

Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, Harpster, called the senate to order. Secretary of State Thad Brown wielded the gavel in the house pending selection of Speaker Gray.

The gavel used by Secretary Brown was made from wood taken from the Washington elm, Cambridge, Mass., the tree under which George Washington assumed command of the Continental army in July, 1775.

Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, state supreme court, administered the oath of office to the house members. The senators were sworn in by Associate Justice Robert H. Day.

In both legislative branches selections recently made in the republican senate and house caucuses for assistants to the clerk, assistant sergeant-at-arms, stenographers, pages and other minor official positions were approved.

Safe Crackers Get $750.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 3.—Bandits blew the safe of the Pantheon theatre, in the heart of the city here, today and escaped with $750.

In their haste the robbers overlooked $5,000.

THIEVES BATTER SAFE, GET $15

Robbers Break Into Sand Company's Offices.

Safe in the office of the East Liverpool Sand company, along the river front near the foot of Jefferson street, was battered open by thieves, believed to be amateurs, Saturday night, aand about $15 or $20 in cash was taken.

The robbery was discovered at 8:00 o'clock Sunday morning by Harry Hoffman, secretary-treasurer. The combination on a light safe, built as a protection against fire, had been knocked off and the doors opened.

The culprits also took a small amount of cash from another safe in the office, which was unlocked. No attempt was made to ransack desks. Entrance to the building was made by smashing a window.

Because of the isolated location of the sand company office and the lack of protection, little money is kept at the office at any time, Hoffman said.

Funeral Services Held Sunday in Hanover Township.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon for Jacob C. Lindesmith, 77, who died in his home in the Lindesmith road, Hanover township, Thursday evening. Services were in charge of Rev. Mr. Roberts of the Hanoverton Presbyterian church.

Mr. Lindesmith was born in Hanover township. He was active in farming and live stock raising, especially horses. Year after year his entries at the county fair won first ribbons. The farm where he died was the second he resided upon during his life.

About a year ago Mr. Lindesmith suffered a stroke. Last Thursday evening following the evening meal he complained of illness, and a physician was summoned. He had suffered an attack of indigestion. His condition grew worse, and he died at 10 o'clock.

He is survived by his wife, Matilda Laughlin, whom he married 52 years ago, and three sons, W. O. Lindesmith, P. H. Lindesmith, both residing near the old homestead, and H. J. Lindesmith of Hanoverton, and three daughters, Mrs. E. J. Williard and Mrs. J. L. Grubbs of near Millport and Miss Lizzie Lindesmith, at home. There are seven grand children and one great grand child.

Mr. Lindesmith was a member of Pleasant Valley grange, having enrolled 49 years ago, or one year after the grange was organized. His son, H. J. Lindesmith, was formerly a trustee of Hanoverton township.

For many years Mr. Lindesmith took an active interest in the good roads movement.

811 LAW SUITS ARE ON DOCKET

From Jan. 2 last up to the close of business last Friday night, 811 law suits were made a matter of record on the appearance docket in common pleas court, the largest number ever to be filed in this county in a single year.

A part of Docket 67 was used in entering these cases, all of Docket No 68 with 166 cases listed in Docket No. 69.

There were 71 cases filed in common pleas during December, and of this number 24 were actions in divorce.

"Should the present rate of business continue during the new year, I would not be surprised should the record show 1,000 new cases during 1927," Clerk Ballantine said today.

TUBERCULIN TEST FUNDS NEEDED

A meeting of the Columbiana County Tuberculosis league is expected to be held within a few weeks, when it is proposed to pledge financial support for the completion of the tuberculin cattle test in this county.

In a report filed with county authorities by the Columbiana County Farm Bureau, it is declared that the county-wide test will be finished within a few weeks, and that probably eight or 10 herds remain untested.

It was said the support of the sheriff's office will be enlisted under Section 112-18 of the General Code of the state when herd owners refuse to permit their cattle to be tested. Interference with such test work subjects the owner to a fine of not less than $100 or more than $300 and imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

State and federal agencies have paid $175,000 for indemnities in the county since the test work began.

REPORTS DELAY IN ROAD WORK

While favorable progress is being made upon the grading of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road between Williamsport and Rogers, a reverse situation prevails on the section between Township Line school and Williamsport, county officials said today.

More than 20,000 cubic yards were moved on the Williamsport-Rogers stretch during December by Williams, Howard & Smith of Youngstown, the contractors on the job, and very little work was done on the southern section by Lewis & Copeland, who have sub-let that grading project to Earl Hatcher of Martins Ferry, according to County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk.

Kirk has just finished a survey of the road between Township Line and Rogers.

Attention of the commissioners has been called to the slow progress on the southern section of this road.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, WITH ADVENT OF 1927, IS DECIDEDLY OLDER MAN THAN EXECUTIVE WHO SAW YEAR 1926 COME IN

By Charles P. Stewart.

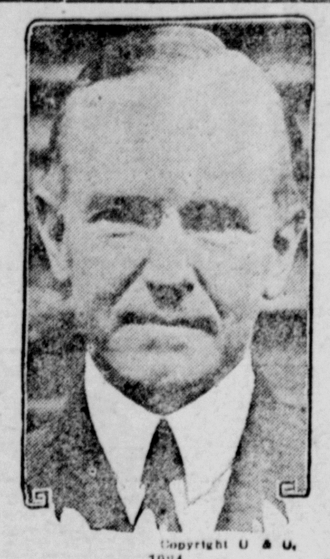

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The President Coolidge, with the arrival of 1927, is a decidedly older looking man than the President Coolidge who saw the year 1926 come in.

The last three months have been trying ones, politically, for the chief magistrate, and it is a matter of subdued comment among White House attendants and frequenters that either these worries or the cares of office have aged him out of all proportion to the period of time which has elapsed since his return from his Adirondack vacation early in the fall.

On his arrival in Washington from the mountains the president appeared in exceptionally good form. From his standpoint, however, the congressional campaign already was developing unsatisfactorily. The election, with the defeat of the administration's staunchest of all supporters—Senator Butler of Massachusetts—and its probable loss of control of the upper house in the next congress did not improve matters.

1925.

1927.

No Unnecessary Fretting.

President Coolidge is not an individual who frets audibly over what cannot be helped. He even managed, for publication, to interpret the result at the polls as, in a sense, a victory for himself. He undoubtedly realizes, nevertheless, that the latter half of his current term will be marked by serious difficulty for his policies, on Capitol Hill.

Aside from such official and political anxieties as may be presumed to weigh on the presidential mind, the White House tenant finds time for less and less physical exercise, what with multiplying executive and legislative problems to be met and many disputed appointments to be made.

The president, of course, is literally growing older, too, and may have lost something of the recuperative powers which were so characteristic of him earlier in his term.

Face Betrays Weariness.

At all events, he lacks much of his former alertness of manner. The peculiar ashen hue of his complexion is accentuated. His face has new and deeper lines and he wears a drawn expression, suggestive of weariness and mental strain.

That he is not unconscious of a change in himself is hinted at by his attitude toward the photographers who constantly swarm about the executive offices. From being snapshotted more frequently than any other individual in the United States, the president has learned to know exactly how to pose so as to be seen at his best. In this respect he is more particular today than ever before. He is keenly interested in the matter of lights and shadows on his face whenever a camera is directed toward him and frequently vetoes any pictures at all when more than usually tired.

Does Not Complain.

President Coolidge is not the person to complain. When his predecessor felt below par he was frank to say so. The present incumbent compresses his lips into a thin line and goes grimly through with whatever he is scheduled to go through with. But whereas hitherto his day's work seemingly seldom overtaxed him, there are frequent evidences now that it costs him an effort.

The White House post long has been known as a man-killer. For a long while President Coolidge showed no signs that he found it so, but at last those who see much of him are beginning to wonder if it finally is not threatening to "get" him.

Mrs. Coolidge, on the other hand, almost seems, day by day, to grow younger, but it is a commonplace in Washington that most American "first ladies" outlive their husbands.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Senator Daniel F. Steck of Iowa is a Democrat and Senator David W. Stewart of the same state is a Republican but they're the best of friends.

True, Republicans and Democrats aren't expected to be personal enemies just because they differ politically.

DANIEL F. STECK

Senators King and Smoot, both from Utah are, respectively, a Democrat and a Republican. Senator Edge of New Jersey is a Republican and Senator Edwards of New Jersey is a Democrat. There are several other similar mixtures in the upper house of congres and a good many variegated delegations in the lower one. Their inter-party relationships are very pleasant.

But Steck and Stewart are regular pals. They're "Dan" and "Dave" to one another. They're inseparable. Hardly another so brotherly a pair is to be found in the senate.

The explanation undoubtedly is that the two are naturally congenial spirits and that the Republican and Democratic labels no longer mean much, if anything.

Steck was a candidate in 1924 against Smith W. Brookhart, the Republican senatorial nominee. Brookhart was declared elected but Steck filed a contest. Hanford MacNider, Republican assistant secretary of war, was one of his strongest supporters. He won his seat with votes of Republicans, who preferred him, a nominal Democrat, to Brookhart, a nominal Republican.

But in 1926 Brookhart secured another Republican nomination, beating Albert B. Cummins, and in November he was elected over Claude R. Porter, Democrat.

This time Brookhart's victory was unquestioned, but he doesn't take office until the 70th congress meets and the present one is the fag end of the 69th.

In the meantime Senator Cummins died, leaving a three-month unfinished balance of his term to be filled out by appointment by Gov. Hammill.

Hammill was so far from being Brookhart's kind of a Republican that he wouldn't name Brookhart even for three months, but selected Stewart instead.

This, then, Steck and Stewart had, to begin with, in common:

Each was chosen for being, in his own way, as different as possible from Brookhart.

With this tie between them, they soon found they had others.

Notably, both are "safe and sane," as "regulars," regardless of party, define "safety and sanity." Good corn belt senators, they want what their section of the country wants, but they show a disposition to get it by moral suasion, if they can rather than by resorting to the use of a blackjack.

They're not violently belligerent. Brookhart is, the conservatives complain.

However, the Steck-Stewart senatorial friendship is not destined to be of long duration. On March 4 out goes Stewart and in comes Brookhart, immediately, if there's an extra session: next December, at the latest.

It's safe to say that Brookhart will be no Pythias to Steck's Damon.

No two senators could be more unlike in ideas, in temperament, in methods or in manner. There's the recollection of that contest rankling between them.

The Steck-Stewart relationship is something beautiful to behold. The Steck-Brookhart relationship is likely to be pointed to in future congresses as a horrible example.

Three State Jobs Given Columbiana County Applicants

A Man of Rare Professional Attainment

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the late Ray V. Pierce, M. D. At first he practiced medicine in Western Pennsylvania and his unusual ability and success were soon recognized there, then he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary where his famous home remedies have ever since been made.

Each succeeding year the sale of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been greatly increased. Evidently people appreciate the fact that it increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, helps to enrich the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young. It contains no harmful ingredient.

Watch for the FLYING CLOUD— Coming Soon

In Those Great Days

IN those great days when iron men went down to the sea in wooden ships, when American clippers ruled the seven seas, and the quickest road to California was the fastest road to fortune, the FLYING CLOUD was the queen of open water.

Storming down the trades, chasing the horizon from Sandy Hook to Golden Gate, the FLYING CLOUD set record after record for that turbulent fifteen thousand miles from old New York to new San Francisco—for the fastest single voyage, for the two, three and four fastest trips.

Wherefore, because she is a symbol of speed and grace and repeated phenomenal performance—

Because she represents the league-long stride that Yankee ingenuity made from the bluff-bowed, wallowing merchantmen that tried to compete with her—

Reo has chosen her name and her image as the sign and symbol of a motor car which embodies the same qualities that made the FLYING CLOUD the most famous of the world's most beautiful means of travel—a car which represents a similar long stride in advance of its contemporaries.

"PAY-AS-YOU GO" POLICY IS URGED IN OHIO

State Auditor Points Way to Reduce Burdensome Charges.

DEBTS INCREASE

Cites Situation in Cities and School Districts.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—"Only by means of the 'pay-as-you-go' policy can a reduction in the burdensome charge for support of the sinking funds in local taxing units throughout Ohio be averted," declared Joseph Tracy, state auditor, here today.

"The increase of the public debt of local taxing units still continues with no appreciable improvement of the financial situation in many cities and school districts," Tracy said.

Tracy announced that the public debt in Ohio for 1926 aggregated $ 12,624,409 for counties, cities, villages, townships and school districts, compared with $879,143,684 in 1925.

"Even minor public improvements cannot be made except by resorting to bond issues," continued Tracy. "A 'pay-as-you-go' plan of financing such minor improvements has not been generally adopted.

"It is some consolation to note that the increase this year is $33,000,000 which is considerably less than that of previous years. Deficiency bonds, totaling $5,697,754.56 were issued to provide relief to county, municipal and school districts, but it seems that such relief is only temporary. Many districts have been financially embarrassed during the past two years," Track stated.

He issued the following comparative tables relative to the public debt:

| | July 1, 1925 | July 1, 1926 |
|---|---|---|
| County ..... | $137,616,310 | $141 490,005 |
| Cities ..... | 453,573,437 | 477,682,284 |
| Villages ..... | 53,614,150 | 52,198,559 |

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

GORE TALKS ON ROAD BUILDING

Chief Executive Outlines Views in Address to Assessors.

Governor Howard M. Gore, who recently spoke at the annual convention of county assessors held in Charleston took occasion to discuss the state's road problem.

The chief executive touched briefly on the economies of the road situation, illustrating his points with stories intended to show it is more economical to build roads than not to build them.

Passing through one mud hole will depreciate the value of an automobile five per cent, the governor asserted and the same loss in excess of ordinary depreciation will take place on one trip if the roads traversed are not right. Carrying this point further, Mr. Gore said that there are 140,000 motor vehicles in the state. While these cars may lose considerably more than five per cent in value because of improper roads on any one trip, the governor said he would take only a five per cent depreciation per car per year in excess of ordinary depreciation, and finds that it costs the owners of the 140,000 motor cars $7,000,000 in a year's time. With good roads this depreciation would be saved.

"The question, therefore," the governor said, "is will the automobile owners put their money in a depreciation or in roads."

The outstanding indebtedness of the state for roads, the governor said, is approximately $44,000,000, with all of the $50,000,000 bond issue spent. The remaining $6,000,000 is in the hands of the sinking funding commission, having been bought over by the state. The plan, he explained, is to ask the legislature to authorize the re-issue of this money and if authority is granted, the state will have sufficient funds to go ahead with its program next year.

The governor called on the assessors to take varying conditions into consideration in making up their valuations of property, as for instance, in the case of farm products, which are subject to market conditions.

In closing, Mr. Gore reminded the assessors that all officials should be ambitious to perform their whole duty to the public.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold instantly. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs

WAGES OF MINERS ON 1917 SCALE

A slight increase in the demand for miners to begin work with the opening of the new year was noted by C. M. O'Neil, examiner in charge of the state-federal labor bureau at Charleston. Mr. O'Neil said that he has had several requests for miners.

As to the wage situation, the outlook seems to be that many of the mines are going back to the 1917 scale, owing to the recent decline in the coal market. This means a reduction of approximately $2, per day under the increase granted to miners early in the fall.

BROOKE COUNTY RECORD BROKEN

A checkup on Friday evening at the county clerk's office in Brooke county revealed that 3,098 marriage licenses had been issued at that office during the past year, which sets a record not only for this county but also West Virginia. The previous high mark reached in marriage license was made last year when 2,949 were issued at the local office. Over three hundred applicants for license the past year were turned away by Clerk Montgomery for the most part because of their age.

Exactly Suits Elderly Persons

There is a sound therapeutic reason why Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds is especially suited to the needs of elderly persons: because it contains no chloroform, or opiates to cause constipation (that bug-bear of advancing years) and to dry up the natural and necessary secretions. Mildly laxative, wonderfully soothing and healing to the irritated area, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound quickly stops all coughs and throat irritations, lingering "flu" coughs and disturbing night coughs. Is exactly suited to the needs of elderly people. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Because of the higher cost of living in Switzerland, many Swiss spent their vacations recently in Italy, France and Belgium.

Don't treat a cough lightly. Don't be foolish and say, "I'll get over it."

No matter what causes it: exposure, colds or irritation from dust and smoking—a cough is a signal that the throat tissues are inflamed and may quickly become breeding places for myriads of germs that lurk in the mucus. If this infection spreads, serious consequences will result.

Get rid of that cough right now before it "settles" in the "danger zone". Take PERTUSSIN at once.

It loosens up congestion promptly, and by stimulating expectoration, helps to rid you of sticky, germ-laden phlegm that clogs the air passages.

PERTUSSIN is a simple herbal remedy—pleasant to take, free from "dope", and has been prescribed by physicians for 20 years.

If your cough has already settled in the "danger zone", you should see your Doctor.

HIGHS LOSE TO ALUMNI--ELKS BREAK SALEM'S WINNING STREAK

Capacity Crowd Sees Antlers Stop League Leaders.

SALEM'S dreams of riding a tidal wave of victory to supremacy in the Columbiana Coutny Amateur Basketball league were puctured here Saturday night when the East Liverpool Elks, turning in their finest performance of the season, handed the hitherto undefeated Mullins Body five a 44 to 21 setback, and although the Mullins stars are still on top of the heap today, their position is not so steady.

The contest attracted the record crowd of the campaign here to date, all available room being taken at the high school gymnasium. Coach Bill Powell's lads, facing the biggest job they have had to handle yet, went at their task in unostentatious, but workmanlike style, the great defense combination of Captain Anderson and "Chuck" McConville breaking up play after play; Center Wilde absolutely outplaying, outscoring and outwitting Center Matticks, the star of the Salem combine, throughout the game; Clark, Wilson and Pusey, the forwards, collecting 12 field goals among themselves and the team, in general, exhibiting a co-operation and a brand of passing that was certain of results from the very start.

The contest saw the advent of Tom Pusey, former high school star, who is ineligible for further participation in school athletics. The diminutive forward broke into the independent ranks with his customary dash and fitted in as though he had been playing all his life with this particular outfit.

The Elks went to the lead at the very outset and never were headed. They ran up a 10 to 2 count on Salem in the first quarter with Clark and Wilde reaching the basket for the Elks. In the second period the visitors crept up a little and shortly before the half only six points separated the two teams. But the Elks resumed their scoring drive with a few minutes to go and the gap widened to 21-11 at the half.

The visitors used a number of substitutes in the final quarter with the game gone and Elks scorers took advantage of the opportunity to fatten their "batting" averages.

Matticks, center, who scored 25 points against Columbiana in a recent contest, went home with three field goals and a foul for his night's work. Wilde outjumped him consistently and generally played basketball that made the "old-timers" sit up and look. Hawkins and Sidinger were the principal performers for the Mullins quint.

The league standing remains unchanged as a result of the two games at the week end. Damascus defeated Lisbon, 59 to 23, Friday night, and sticks to second place, a half-game behind Salem now, with the Elks a half game behind Damascus.

The Salem five, apparently, has not been given the brand of refereeing they received here Saturday night and objected frequently. How they could object to Bill Watkins, whose ability is unquestioned all over the Tri-State district is something to wonder at. Apparently, no other league referee has called them as they saw them, like Bill does, in games in which the Salem team has figured. If all the referees were like Watkins, the officiating end of the circuit would be a guaranteed success.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you swing your clubs in practice you often note how snappily the clubhead zips past where the ball ordinarily would be. Then you wonder why you never can get such a swing to work when you are actually hitting the ball. The answer to that puzzler is easy, and in the answer you will find one of the very finest rules for your whole golf career. The answer is that when you make those practice swings you are using your natural, easy swing. That is the swing to use when you are hitting the ball—your natural, easy swing. It is your failure to take things easily when you are hitting at the ball, as you do when practicing, that causes all the trouble. The secret to be discerned here is that all golf shots should be executed without that conscious effort to force the club. Watch that point.

Collins Is Ready To Face Risberg On Scandal Count

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Eddie Collins, third of baseball's trinity to be involved in tales of scandal that trace back to the game's dark ages before 1919, and only one of many named by Swede Risberg as a participant in an alleged "fixing" of the 1917 American league pennant race, will go to Chicago to confront Risberg if Judge Landis wants him to, he said today, but he really considers Risberg's story "too silly" to be required to be answered in person.

Risberg is scheduled to come back before Judge Landis on Wednesday to repeat his charges in the presence of the accused, who, in addition to Collins, include Ray Schalk and Donie Bush, newly appointed managers at Chicago and Pittsburgh, respectively; George Dauss, veteran Detroit pitcher, and Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox in 1917, but now on American league umpire. The date of the hearing was set by Landis in the hope that, with complainant and defendents present, there would be no suspended verdicts nor loose ends such as was the case in the recent scandal involving Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

ROWLAND, SCHALK REACH CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Clarence Rowland, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Ray Schalk, present manager, were in Chicago today, the first to arrive in answer to telegrams sent out by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, requesting all members of the White Sox and Detroit teams of 1917 to meet in the commissioner's office here on Wednesday to answer "crooked baseball" charges made by Charles "Swede" Risberg.

GRADUATE FIVE LANDS IN LAST TWO MINUTES

Miss Imbrie is Star as Girls Defeat Alumni.

HIGH school basketball teams turned in a 50-50 performance in games Friday night with Alumni opponents, the girls nosing out 24- to 23 over the graduate lassies and the boys taking the short end of a 39 to 37 count before their Ex-High foes.

The chief engagement was a real game throughout, both fives maintaining a fast pace. Lorah's lads played up to snuff against their older opponents and the latter came through only in the last two minutes.

The graduates took the lead at the start, McConville caging the first basket on a long shot. Smith tossed in a point from the foul line. High tied the score from the foul line with Hamilton and Wildblood tossing in one-pointers. The Alumni forged ahead again when Smith and DeBolt caged field goals, but were overehauled on two-point tosses by Hamiliton and Larkins. Captain Hamilton dropped in two from the free zone. DeBolt evened it up for the Alumni with a pretty side shot, the first period ending with the count 9-9.

The Ex-High got under way in full steam at the start of the second quarter, scoring four straight double deckers. Elmer English replaced McKeever in the high school lineup, going to a guard post, and for the rest of the quarter whirlwind basketball was the order. Lorah's five crept up gradually until they held a 21-20 lead at the half.

DeBot's shot put the Alumni ahead at the start of the third period. The Ex-Highs maintained their small advantage through the period which ended at 28 to 25. During the quarter Captain Hamilton was injured, being forced to leave the game. McKeever went back into the fray.

Wilblood and English came through with a series of three field goals, giving High a three-point lead.

Firth Smith's field goal cut it down two points, but Elmer English made the count 33 to 30. Bob Pusey dropped one in from mid-floor. McConville counted and the game was getting more fiery as the end neared. McKeever sent school rooters into an uproar when he sank a field goal to put High in the lead. Smith tied it up with a pretty one from mid-floor. A sensational long shot by Wildblood again gave the Highs the lead with three minutes to go. The Alumni then began to shoot from long range. Smith connected to tie the count and DeBolt's try from the middle of the court was good for two points, the winning points, as the whistle blew.

To name one or two particular stars would be difficult, for all who played contributed stellar performances.

Imbrie's nine double deckers and two fouls clinched the girls' contest. The Alumni lassies showed a better brand of passwork but lost in face of Miss Imbrie's marksmanship.

Movin' On

Jack Grabowski, one of the long line of catchers destined at some time or other to succeed Ray Schalk as White Sox backstop, may finally win fame for hilmself as a backstop, but it won't be as a member of Comiskey's catchers. For the young backstop is now a member of the New York Yankees, via the trade route.

ED GRABOWSKI

Huggins obtained Grabowski in the deal which sent Aaron Ward to the Sox recently.

Grabowski came up to the White Sox two or three years ago and joined the group of 'second Schalks,' which today has included Graham, Yaya Yaryan, Long, McCurdy, Crouse, and others.

He broke into 48 games last year and hit .262.

Denials Pour In On Landis After 'Swede's' Story

"Liar" is Common Answer to Risberg's Pool Charges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Denials from some of baseball stardom's mightiest poured into Chicago today as an aftermath of charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg to Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, that the Chicago White Sox gave money to the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" a series of four games in 1917.

Eddie Collins, "Red" Faber, Donie Bush, Clarence Rowland, Ray Schalk, Hughie Jennings and many others termed Risberg either "a liar," or denied any knowledge of the so-called "pool" collected by the Sox and given to the Tigers.

Schalk and several others admitted there was a "pool" but claimed the money was given to the Tigers for their splendid work against the Boston team, helping the Sox to triumph. Such was then the "custom of the country," according to Schalk.

Oscar (Happy) Felsch, barred from baseball with Risberg in the 1919 world's series scandal, was the only player who did not attack his former teammate. Risberg hinted that if given the opportunity he might tell more than has yet found the ear of Judge Landis. Felsch said:

"Is that all 'Swede' said? I thought he would tell more than that."

Fuel is Added to Fires of "Scandal" as Ousted Player Tells How Team Won Second Place Money; Navin Brands $1,100 Pool Story, for Laying Down to White Sox as Falsehood.

DETROIT, Jan. 3.—At least one and possibly all of a three-game series were "thrown" to the Detroit Tigers late in 1923 by the St. Louis Browns, but there was no conspiracy, Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times today quotes Ty Cobb as saying.

The St. Louis Browns were playing in Detroit. It was late in the season and the Tigers were fighting Cleveland for second place.

At 1 o'clock, or two hours before the game, some St. Louis players approached Cobb, manager of the Tigers, according to Walker. They said: "You are going to win today's game. We will not try to take it. Those damned ———(meaning the Indians) have insulted us all season and we hope you beat them out. Today's game is yours," Walker quotes Cobb as saying.

Cobb revealed this just before he left Detroit for Augusta, Walker says.

"I was in uniform at the time, and went to the office of Navin (Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club) and told him the whole thing," Cobb said according to Walker. "There was still more than an hour in which to get down bets on a sure thing. I do not know whether any bets were made or not. I didn't make any bets, but we won the game."

The Tigers not only won that game but they swept the series from the Browns and won second place over Cleveland by a few points. Navin denied today that the Tigers were given approximately $1,000 for "laying down" to the White Sox. The money was a pool given to the Tigers for defeating the Boston Red Sox in a crucial series, he said, and not a bribe to have them throw games.

Navin indicated that he would not go to Chicago to appear before Judge Landis to reply to Risberg's charges.

"I have not been asked to go to Chicago. What would I want to go there for?" he said.

It is understood the various Tiger players involved in Risberg's charges will heed the call of baseball's czar and appear before him. All members of the club who could be reached said Risberg's charges were false and only the mouthings of a man angered because he was barred from baseball.

Harry Heilman, Bobbie Veach and Bernie Boland all say they never heard of such a proposal.

The games in question were played on October 5th, 6th and 7th. Detroit won three straight by the scores of 9 to 1, 12 to 3, and 7 to 6.

SPEAKER, COBB MAY BE GIVEN NEW HEARINGS

Risberg's Story Acts as Boomerang for Pair.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, that peerless diamond pair ousted from baseball by "Dutch" Leonard's now famous tattle-tale, may get another chance.

Indications today were that Cobb and Speaker at least may be given a new hearing in an attempt to clear their names.

The sensational story related by Charles "Swede" Risberg, one of the original "Black Sox," to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, of a "purchase" by the Chicago White Sox of a series of four games with the Detroit Tigers in 1917, has acted as a boomerang in the troubled waters of the former Detroit and Cleveland managers.

Will Meet Accuser.

Eddie Collins, now of Philadelphia Athletics, Donnie Bush, new Pittsburgh manager, Ray Schalk, new White Sox manager, and others accused in the "fixing" story of Risberg, are to meet their accuser before Judge Landis on Wednesday and it is known that strong pressure is being brought by friends of Cobb and Speaker to give them the same opportunity to meet Leonard in a final showdown.

Judge Landis, it was reported, has been appealed to in an effort to have him bring Leonard here to give Ty and Tris a chance to fight for vindication, both having claimed if they were given a chance to meet Leonard face to face they would make him "eat his words."

The baseball czar refused to comment today on the reported rehearing for the two famous ex-managers but at the same time he would not say the careers of Speaker and Cobb were entirely ended.

Landis Questioned.

"Will the charges of Risberg make any difference in the cases of Cobb and Speaker?" Judge Landis was asked.

His answer was guarded. He said: "I would not care to say anything about that at this time."

"Are you going to give Cobb and Speaker another chance to clear their names," the judge was then asked.

"I can't say right now," the commissioner replied.

"Are the cases of Cobb and Speak-

er entirely closed as far as you are concerned, Judge Landis?" was another question asked the commissioner. He replied:

"Please don't ask me such questions now. I haven't anything to say now."

Judge Landis was loath to comment on the cases of Bush, Collins, Schalk, "Red" Faber and others accused by Risberg.

"Are you going to let Collins, Bush and Schalk play ball this season or are they to be barred?" the judge was asked.

Can Say Nothing.

He answered:

"I can't say now. The investigation of Risberg's charges is just starting. Nothing will be done until a thorough investigation is made."

"Will Collins and Schalk be placed under a temporary ban," Landis was questioned."

"Don't ask me such questions, please. That will all be settled after the investigation."

Cobb and Speaker are not involved in the story of Risberg, who told Judge Landis he was positive that Cobb, then with Detroit, did not receive any of the "collection" claimed to have been given some Detroit players by the Chicago Sox for "throwing" games.

INGRAM FILM AT AMERICAN

"The Magician" Opens Four-day Engagement Here.

"The Magician," which will have its first showing at the American theatre today, beginning a four-day run, is the first Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn since his widely discussed and highly successful screen version of Blasco Ibanez', "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea.)

This new picture from the brilliant young director deals with a subject entirely different from anything he has previously done and he has handled it in the fine manner which has marked all his previous triumphs. It is his most ambitious achievement.

The story of "The Magician" is that of a girl caught between the forces of a Magician, whom she is unable to resist, and the love for a young surgeon who has saved her from being a helpless cripple by performing a delicate operation on her spine, which startled the surgical world.

Ingram has taken the Somerset Maugham story and with his usual brilliance in the handling of such subject, has developed a powerfully romantic drama.

Alice Terry enacts the part of Margaret Dauncey, the young sculptress, and gives one of the finest peformances she has ever registered on the screen.

Paul Wegener has the title role and this noted German character appears to even a better advantage than he did in "The Golem," which created a sensation when released in the United States several years ago.

Ivan Petrovich, a young Serbian actor, plays opposite Miss Terry and Firmin Gemir, the famous French actor and stage director, enacts a most important character part.

Loosen Up that Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."
